Life Drama

Accused of hurling her son into the sea off Venice, Cal., Mrs. Ella Canfield, 27, is questioned by Los Angeles police. The boy, Robert, 9 (shown lying on bench), said his mother took him to the pier, persuaded him to climb to top railing and then shoved him into the water. Unable to swim, the youngster gripped a mooring rope until rescued by police.

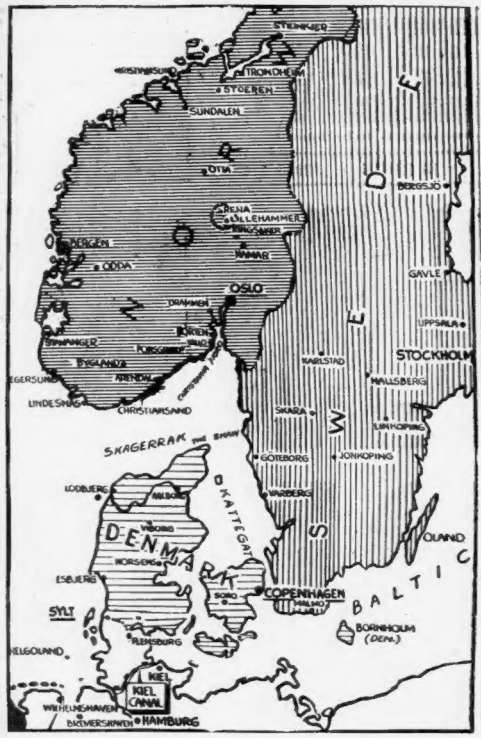
NAZIS CAPTURE RAIL BASE

By STEN HEDMAN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

STOCKHOLM, April 24 (INS)—After a nightlong bombardment that left the town a mass of smoking ruins, German troops swept into the strategic railway center of Steinkjer, 60 miles north of Trondheim, today, forcing British and Norwegian defenders to retreat to new positions.



NORTHERN BATTLEGROUND—Anglo-French-Norse and German forces are finally engaged in the first sizable battles of the war. At top of map above is Steinkjer, where an all-night German bomb attack cleared the town, permitting Nazi troops to sweep the Allies out today. At Stoeren, south of Trondheim, British are reported advancing toward the latter city. Fighting around Lillehammer (ringed) the heaviest action is taking place at Rena. Other battles are in progress near Hamar and in the Oslo area. British airmen bombed Stavanger, Oslo and Christiansand, Norway; Aalborg, Denmark, and the island of Sylt, big German air base off Danish coast.

SECRET GERMAN ARMY BELIEVED GOING TO SWEDEN

PARIS, April 24 (AP)—A spokesman for the French war ministry said today German troops and arms were being embarked aboard transport ships accompanied by icebreakers at German ports on the Baltic Sea across from Sweden.

The embarkations were interpreted by the spokesman as an "evident menace" to Sweden following the German invasions of Norway and Denmark.

The possibility that the German force was intended simply to reinforce the Nazi expeditionary corps in the Oslo sector of southern Norway was not excluded by the spokesman, but he pointed out that the scene of action made this unlikely.

MASS TROOPS AT PORTS

The Germans were said to be massing at ports directly opposite southern Sweden and well to the east of the Danish straits through which transports for Norway would pass.

The presence of icebreakers also was taken to indicate the fleet was destined to operate farther north in the Baltic where the waters still are cluttered with ice floes left later than usual by the long, hard winter.

(Editor's note: Swedish iron ore is shipped to Germany from ports on the Gulf of Bothnia in the summer months. A German military force may be headed for these parts to protect ore shipments or even to take over the Swedish ore mines.)

French military sources have expressed belief that the Germans may go into Sweden to bolster their Norwegian campaign. The allied supreme war council yesterday drafted plans to counteract any such action.

ALLIES PLAN TO ACT

Premier Reynaud summoned his cabinet today to put into effect new plans agreed upon by the allied supreme warc ouncil to co-ordinate French, British, Polish and Norwegian action against any new German assault.

Little activity was noted on the Western Front except for the usual patrol skirmishes and artillery exchanges. Aerial operations dwindled under overcast skies.

The regular morning communique of the French high command merely said:

"Nothing to report."

Hub Ship Dodges Shells

Bringing the American freighter Steel Engineer safely into Boston harbor today after a five months' round the world voyage, Capt George P. Shannon related how his ship ran the gauntlet of French coastal batteries off Algiers in the Mediterranean.

"We were steaming past the Moroccan port when the boom of heavy guns brought everyone on deck," he said. "Some members of the crew were alarmed when shells from shore batteries fell into the sea a few hundred yards ahead.

"I veered the ship out of the danger zone and proceeded after being assured by the French authorities that the incident was gun practice."

The Steel Engineer was also stopped by British naval authorities off Gibraltar and inspected for possible contraband.

Official Norwegian advices received in Stockholm described the Nazi onslaught on Steinkjer as one of the most devastating of the war.

High explosive and incendiary bombs hurtling from the sky and grenades and shells hurled into all sections of Steinkjer were reported to have wrecked the town completely.

Six thousand Norwegian residents now are homeless.

Latest advices said that the British and Norwegian positions eight miles north of the city were still holding out and still represented a strategic grip on the railway spur running through Steinkjer.

Following the initial bombardment by airplanes and light field artillery, German infantrymen advanced with machine guns and rifles to clear out the last defenders of the town.

Allied headquarters in the leading hotel of Steinkjer were subjected to a terrific aerial bombardment, but there was no estimate of casualties.

The British and Norwegian retreat was prepared in advance and was carried out with discipline and good order.

NAZIS PUSH GAINS

Norwegian quarters in Stockholm heard with relief that substantial reinforcements had reached Fort Hegra, on the Trondheim railway line near the Swedish frontier.

German troops continued to advance on Fort Hegra in a semi-circular movement, but Norwegian military authorities described the fort as impregnable and expressed confidence its defenders would ensure Allied control of this important railway indefinitely.

It was thought possible that German capture of Steinkjer might compel alterations in the Allied plan for an early major assault on Trondheim.

London reported that Allied

212 NEGROES DIE AS DANCE HALL IS SWEPT BY FLAMES

NATCHEZ, Miss., April 24 (AP)—More than 200 Negro men and women burned to death here late last night when flames, racing through decorations of dry Spanish moss, trapped them in a one-exit dance hall.

Coroner R. E. Smith said the death list mounted to 212 after several of the victims died in hospitals. He said a number of the survivors remained in critical condition and expressed belief that others might die.

About 300 dancers were in the hall when the fire broke out and flared suddenly. There were no rear or side doors in the building, and windows had been boarded up.

The coroner said bodies were "piled like cordwood."

"From my examination, it appeared that most of the people died of suffocation. A majority of the victims were about 15 or 16 years old. There were about as many men as women victims," he said.

Julius Hawkins, Negro employe of the Natchez Democrat, who was at the dance, said he managed to escape.

"I was standing near the door and it just spread over everything," he said. "I turned and made a run for it and got out with only a scratched arm.

"Inside, everyone was trying to get out and crushed each other as the fire was burning them. All were crying and yelling."

Deputy Sheriff William I. Hebert said after the blaze died down he got other Negroes to help him remove the dead, but soon discovered they were rifling the pockets of the corpses. Even as late as daylight, he said, he caught one sneak thief leaving with a cornet.

The deputy said Bandleader Walter Barnes of Chicago was among the dead, and that only two members of his 12-piece orchestra escaped.

"The building is entirely sheathed with corrugated iron," Deputy Hebert said, "and this formed an oven in which the dancers were baked. The only exit was an ordinary-sized door at the front. The windows had been boarded up to keep out 'gatecrashers.'

"All indications are that the British Rain Bombs On 5 German Bases

LONDON, April 24 (AP)—British war planes bombed the German North Sea seaplane base on the island of Sylt and sank two German patrol vessels in that region in a series of raids last night, the air ministry announced today.

(An official German communique in Berlin said the British raid on Sylt caused no military damage, but admitted the British had dropped 10 bombs, causing "other slight material damage."

(Some of the British planes flew farther south and dropped three bombs on the west coast of Schleswig-Holstein, but all three burst harmlessly in fields, the communique said.)

The Royal Air Force attacked German bases at Aalborg, Denmark and Kristiansand, Oslo and Stavanger, Norway, it was said. "Offensive reconnaissance" was reported carried out over Trondheim fjord.

The ministry's communique follows:

"The air ministry announces a further series of offensive operations was carried out by R. A. F. bomber aircraft last night against air bases available to the enemy for use in the invasion of Norway.

"Westerniand airdrome on the Island of Sylt was heavily and successfully attacked. Bombs were dropped on hangars and runways. Several fires were started and a large explosion occurred.

"North of Sylt a number of enemy patrol vessels were encountered. These opened heavy anti-aircraft fire on our planes. They were immediately attacked and two were sunk.

"Attacks were made also on enemy air bases at Aalborg, Christiansand (Kristiansand), Oslo and Stavanger and offensive reconnaissance was carried out over Trondheim fjord.

"Detailed accounts have not yet been received but preliminary reports indicate that these operations were also highly successful."

NO SALUTE . . . EXPELLED—Lydia Epifanno, 11, and (right) Janet DiGiandomenico, 12, leave Wellesley Junior High school today . . . expelled because they, as "Jehovah's Witnesses," refused to salute the American flag.

Wellesley Girl Flag Rebels Quit School

They turned their backs on the American flag, gathered their belongings, and left Wellesley Junior High School for the last time today, two little girls, expelled because as Jehovah's Witnesses they refuse to salute Old Glory.

Janet DiGiandomenico, 13, of Kingsbury st., and Lydia Epifanno, 11, of Sessions st., both at the top of their seventh grade class, say:

"We love school, but we can't salute the flag."

They say it simply, explaining as they did to the Wellesley school committee, that they respect the American flag, but that their interpretation of the Bible allows them to worship or salute God alone.

The committee, acting under the 1935 law, expelled the two girls until they are ready to salute the flag. Janet and Lydia say that they will get books from the library and study by themselves.

Their parents say they are giving their children freedom to make up their own minds.

Divorcee, Ex-Mate's Partner Honeymoon

Mrs. Janet Withington Rowe, wealthy, twice-divorced Beverly Farms socialite, and William A. Martin, well known Back Bay clubman, were honeymoon-bound for Honolulu today after a surprise wedding in New York.

The couple were married in a suite at Hotel Regis, with the bride attended by her sister, Mrs. Jesse Coe of Cleveland, and Frederick H. Alger of Detroit acting as best man.

The wedding followed swiftly the equally surprising wedding last Friday of Martin's ex-wife, the former Dorothy Blodgett of Brookline, to John William Harris of Beacon Hill, at the Beacon st. home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Blodgett.

The present Mrs. Martin is the divorced wife of Henry Livingstone Rowe of Brookline.

Martin and Rowe formerly were business partners and close friends. The former acted as best man at Rowe's wedding in 1930.

It was Mrs. Martin's third marriage. Before her marriage to Rowe she was Mrs Janet W. Cashman, of Cleveland. After the wedding journey to Honolulu the newly-weds will make their home in Beverly Farms.

Martin was divorced two years ago, from the former Miss Blodgett, a debutante of the 1924-25 season. They had been married in August, 1930, at the luxurious summer estate of the Blodgetts at Wianno, on Cape Cod.

As a debutante Miss Blodgett won considerable fame as an amateur tennis player and both she and Martin were members of the Longwood Cricket Club. She was a graduate of the Holton Ames School in Washington and a member of the Junior League.

Martin, one-time assistant treasurer of a Boston bank, is a graduate o. Noble and Greenough School and a member of the Union Boat and other exclusive clubs.

Druggist Swears He Trapped Wife, Chum

Denying he conspired to frame his attractive young wife for the purpose of obtaining a divorce, Hyman Goldberg, Brighton druggist, counter-charged in Brighton court today that he had trapped her with his friend at a North Attleboro rest camp under compromising circumstances.

Goldberg, with Philip Woodman of Newton and Lester Nash of Brighton, are being tried on charges of conspiracy to obtain false evidence for purposes of a divorce.

Admitting he had introduced Woodman to his wife and that Woodman had lived in his home for several weeks, Goldberg testified he became suspicious that his wife and Woodman were getting too friendly and that he hired detectives to watch them.

"I didn't like the whole picture," Goldberg testified.

Questioned as to what he meant by that, he replied:

"From the corner of my eye I could see they were getting altogether too friendly."

Goldberg told the court that he

Blimp Makes New Flight Over Boston

For the second time this month a U. S. Navy blimp soared over Boston today in a trial flight from Lakehurst, N. J., and return, with Charlestown Navy Yard the northermost point of its trip.

Hundreds of motorists stopped their cars to peer at the craft as it floated through low hanging, early morning clouds.

NEW QUIZ OF FLINT ON NOTE

PROVIDENCE, April 24—Dutee Wilcox Flint, one-time millionaire automobile dealer, went under cross-examination today in his $1,000,000 suit against the estate of the late Col. Samuel M. Nicholson—hinting that much concerning their unusual friedship remained untold.

Entered in evidence was a tiny slip of paper eight inches long and three inches wide, on which the suit is based. It is a promissory note for $1,000,000 which Flint maintained Nicholson signed for "invaluable services rendered."

"There are many things concerning Mr. Nicholson which I hesitate to say in this court out of respect to my great friend," Flint said in bringing his direct testimony to a close.

MAN FRIDAY ROLE

He added that the demands of the wealthy industrialist amounted to virtual enslavement and that in return for his role as Man Friday, the late colonel had told him:

"Dutee, I'll make you a millionaire again." It had been testified that Flint was wiped out in the 1929 stock market crash.

Flint testified that he had served the older man in almost every conceivable capacity from butler, valet, business adviser and travel agent.

The agreement to become Col. Nicholson's adviser and companion came, Flint said, at a dinner at the former's home in 1930.

SAYS LIFE MORTGAGED

From that time, Flint said, his life was really mortgaged to his friend. In describing a typical day aboard the Nicholson yacht, Sea Dream, Flint testified:

"Breakfast at 8:30. Then we would go up on the sun deck or in the cockpit if there was no sun.

"About 11:30 we would go swimming together. Then while at anchor we would have lunch together. In the afternoon we would take a sail. Then we would go bathing together again.

"We would listen to the radio together. There would be books and dinner and then we would talk, sometimes about politics, until about 10 o'clock. Then we would go to bed."

DIVIDE TIME WITH DOG

HUSBAND'S BANK JOB TO PERRY

Governor Saltonstall today submitted the name of ex-Rep. Joseph Earl Perry of Belmont, to the Executive Council for approval to the position of state bank commissioner.

The term of the former commissioner, William P. Husband, Jr., appointed by ex-Governor Hurley for three years, expired recently.

The job pays $6000 a year.

Under suspension of rules the council confirmed Perry's appointment without waiting the usual one week.

Political gossip had forecast that Saltonstall would reappoint Husband.

Perry, who lives at 18 Holt st., was born in Shelburne Falls, in 1884, graduated from Williams College in 1906 and from Harvard Law School in 1909.

He was admitted to the practice of law the year before he graduated from law school and has practiced since. He is also a tax expert.

Perry was on the Belmont school committee from 1919 to 1922. He was a member of the Legislature from 1925 to 1930. He was a state income tax assessor in 1917 and 1918 and has been on the faculty of Northeastern and Boston universities.

He is married and has three children.

Brothers Held As Bandit Pair

Two brothers, James P. and John J. Sullivan of South Boston, alleged to be the handkerchief bandits responsible for a series of armed robberies in Roxbury and Dorchester, were held for the grand jury in bail of $25,000 each today after arraignment in Dorchester court.

The specific charge on which they were held was the holdup of Ludwig Haikimian, a tailor of Hancock st., Dorchester, who was robbed at gunpoint of $3, a watch and clothing. Police hold a total of 12 warrants against them.

The brothers were captured in a South End londginghouse, to which James had been traced after filing marriage intentions to wed Helen Granger, Cliff st., Roxbury.

The girl was exonerated of any guilty knowledge of the alleged activities of the brothers.

EAST BOSTON JUSTICE, 7 OTHERS APPOINTED

The name of Augustus Loschi of Neptune rd., East Boston, for 10 years assistant clerk of East Boston district court, was submitted to the executive council by Gov. Saltonstall today as associate justice in East Boston court.

Seven names for othe positions were submitted at the same time.

Loschi would fill the position left vacant by the recent death of the late Justice Patrick J. Lane. Loschi was born in Boston, graduated from English High School, Harvard College in 1907 and Boston University Law School in 1912.

He was admitted to the bar in 1911 and has practiced since. He is unmarried.

William H. Canavan of Boston, was named for reappointment to the state board of dental examiners and Dr. George S. Wickham of Lee, for reappointment as medical examiner in the third Berkshire district.

Dr. Harry L. Craft of Ashfield, now associate medical examiner of Weston-Franklin district, was named to fill the place as medical examiner of that district left vacant by the resignation of Dr. Howard R. Marble, and Dr. John S. Temple of Shelburne Falls was named to take Dr. Craft's place.

Runnells Sinks, Cash Shortage Up

AUGUSTA, Me., April 24—Suffering a relapse, William A. Runnells fought for his life today while investigators, following a glittering trail of gold, reported a Maine state funds shortage had leaped to $135,000.

Summoned to examine the accused state controller was a heart and lung specialist, Dr. George Young. Runnells, at Augusta hospital, was suffering from two bullet wounds in the chest. He has termed the shooting accidental.

The specialist was called after Runnells' physician, Dr. A. R. Libby, reported that heart trouble had complicated Runnells' condition.

Atty. Gen. Franz U. Burkett said the total shortage in Runnells' accounts, previously placed at between $90,000 and $100,000, had risen to approximately $135,000, with disclosure of an alleged new deficit in state highway funds handled by the state controller, since resigned.

Meanwhile, investigators said Runnells, before his arrest, always carried a brief case containing between $30,000 and $40,000 in what they described as get-away money.

The $5000-a-year official clung to the brief case even while he played golf, officials declared. After his arrest, authorities reported finding approximately $26,000 in $5, $10 and $20 bills in Runnell's brief case.

Cardinal to Speak To Catholic Women

Cardinal O'Connell, sponsor of the League of Catholic Women, was scheduled to address its members today at services in St. Clement's Church, as the highlight of the league's convention at Hotel Somerset.

Others expected to speak at today's sessions included Rt. Rev. Msgr. Edward Murray, rector of St. John's Seminary; Edward B. Hanify, professor of law at Boston College Law School; the Rev. Francis E. Low, S. J., of Boston College, and Charles D. Magirnis, distinguished architect.

In an opening address, Edward A. Sullivan, president of Teachers' College at Salem, declared that the child under God, is the property of his parents and no agency has the right to usurp educative functions.

"The State may be deputied to teach the child," he stated, "but the final responsibility rests squarely on the shoulders of the parents. The State has no right to wrest the child from the family or impose a system of education which is not acceptable to the parents."

In greeting members of her organization, Mrs. Vincent L. Green president, warned that entry of America into the war would mean regimentation and dictatorship.

"The issues of the war are European, not domestic," Mrs. Green said. "As American women we endorse the neutrality which Congress has declared and which President Roosevelt has advocated so strongly.

"This despite the emotionalism of people who refuse to face the stern reality that entering war can only mean for us the regimentation of industry and a dictatorship which will end our democratic form of government."

Year Sentence In 10-Cent Theft

Pleading guilty to a robbery charge, Norman O. Peterson, 31, of North Federal st., Lynn, today was on his way to serve a year's sentence at the state farm less than 12 hours after he had been arrested.

Peterson was seen in a Lynn cafe last night by Frederick Marion, 12-year-old Lynn newsboy, who charged that Peterson robbed him of 10 cents, then threw him into the mud flats of Lynn harbor.

He was arrested, charged with assault and robbery, pleaded guilty and was sentenced. Police said Peterson had a record of earlier arrests.

Jobless Hub Maid Dies in N. Y. Blaze

NEW YORK, April 24 (INS)—Smoke inhalation brought death to Grace Rent, 50, unemployed hotel maid, who came here from Boston four years ago, and overcame three other persons today when fire of undetermined origin broke out on the third floor of a four-story rooming house on 22d st.

The blaze was extinguished quickly.

RADIO MEN LINKED TO SOVIETS

WASHINGTON, April 24 (AP)—Fred M. Howe, who said he had been "kicked out of office" in a marine radio union, told the Dies committee today that "high officials" of the American Communications Ass'n (CIO) were Communists who planned to help set up a Soviet system in this country in event of war.

He testified also that he had seen a man named Stano, whom he identified as a Communist, in the radio room of the yacht Sea Cloud, owned by Joseph E. Davies, former United States ambassador to Belgium and Russia.

Davies was ambassador to Belgium at the time. Howe said, and Stano was in a position to handle and copy radiograms sent to and from the yacht.

Howe charged that the international executive board of the American Communications Ass'n had used a "goon squad" to oust him forcibly as an official of Local 2 of the American Radio Telegraphers' Ass'n, marine division of the ACA.

Of communism, he declared:

"High officials of the American Communications Ass'n are members of the Communist party and have been for years. Their sole purpose is to get control of communications and, in event of war, to tie them up and help the party take over industries of the United States and establish a Soviet system."

Until recently, Howe testified, Hollis O. Fairchild, whom he identified as a Communist, had been an employe of the marine radio station at Chatham, Mass., which he said was the best and largest in the country, able to communicate with ships throughout the world.

10,000 WELCOME DEWEY

DENVER, April 24 (AP)—Between 9000 and 10,000 persons, Denver's largest political rally since President Roosevelt spoke on the State House steps in 1936, packed the auditorium last night to hear Thomas E. Dewey accuse the Roosevelt administration of turning American progress into "economic stagnation and defeatism."

The New York district attorney, a Republican presidential candidate, said the New Deal administration has "attempted to persuade us that we must resign ourselves to a permanent depression, so that there may be a permanent excuse for the New Deal.

"Here is an example. On Nov. 17, 1935, Harry Hopkins, as administrator of the WPA said: 'I believe that under our present system we will have to face indefinitely the fact that many people will want jobs who cannot find them.'

"On whose authority did that prophet of economic despair speak? Certainly not upon the authority of the history of the American people . . . We have had our ups and downs, but we have always continued our progress. The New Dealers have transformed that progress into economic stagnation and fatalism."

Several hundred stood throughout the address.

Guffey's Lead Mounts in Pa.

PHILADELPHIA, April 24 (AP)—Senator Joseph F. Guffey, down-the-line supporter of the New Deal, held a steadily widening lead today for Democratic nomination for U. S. Senator in Pennsylvania's primary which gave President Roosevelt a heavy test vote.

The President's name was placed on a presidential preference ballot by the Democratic state committee which endorsed him for a third term.

Guffey, who had said his defeat would be interpeted as "repudiation of President Roosevelt and the New Deal," never lost his early lead over his chief rival, Walter A. Jones, Pittsburgh oil man who was supported by Democratic State Chairman David L. Lawrence and other leaders.

Returns from 6315 of the state's 8105 districts gave Guffey 323,188, Jones 254,191.

Guffeys' opponent in the fall election will be Jay Cooke, Philadelphia banker and chairman of the Philadelphia city G. O. P. committee, who captured the Republican senatorial nomination. In 6005 districts Cooke received 556,692 votes against 116,110 cast for Albert H. Ladner, Philadelphia attorney.

RABBI ASSAILS EUROPE'S 'PIRATES'

Marauders and pirates of Europe were assailed by Rabbi Joseph S. Shubow of Temple Banai Moshe during Passover services today.

Referring to the Higadah, or Passover religious service book, he used as his sermon topic the passage which begins, "Lo, this is the bread of affliction."

"There have been times in Jewish history when the eating of the bread of affliction seemed indeed to be an anachronism," he declared.

"Never before has the partaking of the bread of affliction had so realistic and personal meaning as today when we look upon millions of Christians and Jews alike compelled to live, or better eke out, an existence in poverty, fear and shame brought on by marauders and pirates who have made of Central Europe a prison pen and are seeking to reduce northern Europe to a vile vassalage."

As a result of the "lust and greed of a few buccaneers on top," he said, "millions of Innocent, peaceful and decent human beings must be led like lambs to the slaughter."

GOODWIN FOR LANES OF SAFETY

If motorists are to be thoroughly impressed with the fact that street intersections are the rightful domain of pedestrians when properly crossing, then safety lanes at every Boston corner are "absolutely imperative," Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin said today.

Warmly endorsing the Boston Evening American's series of editorials advocating an increase of safety lanes over the 500 intersections now painted by the Boston traffic commission, Goodwin said:

"In many cases, of course, the pedestrian is to blame just as much as the motorist who knocks him down. However, no one can deny that white lines painted on a street have a psychological effect on both motorist and pedestrian.

"The response is invariably caution.

"The very fact that the Traffic Commission makes a point of painting lanes on any crossing—no matter what the age—when more than four accidents have occurred at that crossing in one year bears out the point.

"I believe both the motorist and pedestrian would be made more aware of each other's rights if safety lines met the eye at every intersection."

Americans Must Bow to Japanese

TIENTSIN, April 24 (AP) — Americans now are required to alight from their cars and bow to the Japanese sentries who search their machines and baggage at the entrances to the British and French concessions, Americans here reported today.

The stricter attitude on the part of the Japanese, the Americans said, was coincident with yesterday's representations in Tokyo by United States Ambassador Joseph C. Grew that the Japanese blockade of the Tientsin concessions was working hardships on American residents.

Tetrazzini Near Death in Milan

MILAN, April 24 (INS) — Luisa Tetrazzini, whose soprano voice brought joy to lovers of opera in three continents, was reported to be near death today in her Milan home.

Madame Tetrazzini was stricken with paralysis in her left side. Personal appearance tours in Europe, North America and South America made Madame Tetrazzini a beloved figure in the world of music. She made her debut in Florence in 1895 and began her first world tour in 1905.

Kelly Warns of Big El Deficit Scandal

In a last minute move to delay approval of the $2,724,000 deficit reported by the Boston Elevated for 1939, former Lieut.-Gov. Francis E. Kelly today wired Governor Saltonstall that investigation by the Boston Finance Commission would uncover the greatest scandal ever known in Massachusetts.

Boston Evening American Photo

PRESIDENT — Re-elected president of the Junior League, Geraldine Field, Boston socialite, will head that organization through the 1940-41 season.

Despite the recent protests voiced by Kelly the Governor has indicated he intends to submit the deficit warrant to his executive council for approval at its meeting today.

"Your answer, 'I have no further answer to make on the Elevated matter,' to my request that you confer with the statae appointed Boston Finance Commission apparently proves you have made up your mind to keep these alleged losses of over $19,000,000 in the past nine years a closed book to the taxpayers and car-riders of the 14 cities and towns affected," Kelly wired the Governor.

Four members of the executive council represent districts served by the Elevated.

They are Daniel H. Coakley of Boston, Eugene A. F. Burtnett of Somerville, Russell Havey of West Roxbury, and Frank A. Brooks of Concord, the latter's territory extending into Watertown and sections of Brighton.

In referring to his previous suggestion that the governor have the deficit investigated Kelly's wire said:

"If you complied with my request and called the Boston Finance Commission and their investigators before you, and they gave you the results of their investigation for the past nine months, it would expose the greatest scandal ever known in the history of Massachusetts."

Earlier this week Kelly hailed on Governor Saltonstall to explain the haste with which the State Treasurer William E. Hurley anticipated approval of the El loss.

He reefrred to the announcement on Monday of Treasurer Hurley that State bonds to pay the deficit had been sold to two oBston banks with the pqoviso that they be dated tomorrow, apparently in anticipation of approval of the warrant at today's council session.

MacKenze King, F. D. End Talk

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., April 24 (INS)—Canadian Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King today concluded a visit at the "Little White House" which President Roosevelt most specifically insisted had no bearing on American-Canadian policy.

The President and his old friend, who is now directing Canada's participation in the European war, spent a second day chatting in the Roosevelt study and driving about this famed infantile paralysis foundation.

This afternoon King was motoring to Atlanta to catch a train for Williamsburg, Va., silent on his visit with the President. In fact, President Roosvelt announced after the Dominion prime minister's arrival here Tuesday that "it wouldn't be good for the American position for Mr. King to give out any statement or be interviewed while he is on a purely vacation trip."

NAZIS SEIZE RAIL BASE, ROUT FOES

troops in a relentless advance from Andalsnes have captured a main railroad junction at Stoeren, 25 miles south of Trondheim.

NAZI PLANES ACTIVE

Allied advices said that while the British and Norwegian forces had been compelled to give up some advanced positions in this area, these losses were regarded as only temporary.

German planes were reported continuing widespread efforts to destroy allied communications and thus check the British progress to the south.

Every report reaching Stockholm newspapers set the number of allied troops in the region north of Trondheim at a different figure. It appeared, however, that about 17,000 British and French troops were there.

(A Reuter dispatch from Stockholm to London said that allied reinforcements were streaming down the Gudbrandsdal valley unceasingly, heading for Lillehammer. The dispatch quoted the Koeros correspondent of the newspaper Aftonbladet as stating that neither side had made any advances in that area.

A five-day snowstorm paralyzed all military activity at Narvik, Reuter said, accounting for failure of an anticipated allied attack to materialize.)

MAJOR BATTLE NEARS

South of Trondheim the Allies were marching north to meet other German detachments which already have reached a point within 50 miles south of Trondheim.

Scene of a major battle is expected in that sector soon.

According to advices here, the German troops are being supported by operations along the Norwegian coast and hold the initiative in the expected engagement.

(A British radio broadcast picked up by the Columbia Broadcasting System cited a report that the allied forces have reached Levanger, 35 miles north of Trondheim, and have encountered German troops there.)

Reports of an impending clash on land followed indications that a large-scale naval battle may still be progressing in the Skaggerak. The roar of heavy guns was heard up and down the southwest coast of Sweden during the night.

Five German mine-sweepers, converted from captured Norwegian whalers, sailed into Swedish territorial waters near Stroemstad. Warships of the Swedish neutrality patrol swiftly forced them out to sea again.

Residents of islands along the Swedish west coast reported sighting German planes speeding toward Norway, evidently carrying Nazi troop reinforcements.

Advices from the battle area north of Trondheim indicated the Germans there have been receiving reinforcements by air. Norwegian military experts were represented as taking a hopeful view of the situation, however, and expressing belief the northward thrust of the Germans will be halted.

While the situation at the northern port of Narvik remained unclear, a Swedish army captain estimated that no less than 2500 persons have been drowned in Narvik harbor since the fighting first broke out there.

The captain, Haakan Moeller, who has just arrived in Stockholm, said that a total of 35 ships have been sunk in Narvik harbor. He declared 1500 of the drowned were Germans from destroyers and transports, while the remainder were Norwegians, British and neutrals.

Fighting meantime continued on the front north of Elverum, where Norwegian resistance was reported considerably strengthened. The German advance in this area was said to have been halted at Lake Oaen near the Swedish border province of Dalarna.

Chinese Recapture Capital in Honan

CHUNGKING, April 24 (AP)—The Chinese central news agency reported today that Kaifeng, Honan province, had been wrested from the Japanese—first provincial capital to revert to Chinese hands since the Chinese-Japanese war began July 7, 1937.

Chinese troops were reported to have driven through the north and south gates of the city, wiping out a Japanese detachment defending one gate and setting fire to Japanese barracks and supply depots.

BERLIN CLAIMS 57 BRITISH SHIPS HIT

BERLIN, April 24 (INS)—A total of 57 British ships have been lost or damaged as a result of German attacks off the Norwegian coast since April 9, the high command announced today.

The official estimate corrected a previous figure of 61 Allied naval units lost in that period, and contradicted London and Paris contentions of much smaller admitted damage to the British and French fleets.

Here is the lineup of British losses as viewed by the Germans:

Sunk or set on fire: Five cruisers, seven destroyers, 14 submarines, three transports.

Hit or heavily damaged: Seven battleships, eight cruisers, four destroyers, one aircraft carrier and eight transports.

The German command said battles occurring on April 10 inflicted the greatest losses thus far on British warships. On that day alone, according to an official statement, four battleships were hit by two or three air bombs each, two battle cruisers received at least one direct hit, three heavy cruisers were damaged or set on fire and two transports were struck by a bomb each.

Kelsey, wife of the vice-consul; Prof. Andreas Ronhove, his wife and two children.

Mrs. Florence Jaffray Harriman, minister to Norway, arrived last night, announcing she planned to remain in Stockholm until the situation is cleared.

The body of Capt. Robert M. Losey, 31-year-old assistant military attache at Stockholm, who was killed in a German bombing raid at Dombas, Norway, on Sunday, will arrive here at 9 a. m. tomorrow. A delegation from the American legation will meet the train.

NAZIS CLOSE GRIP ON FOES AT HAMAR

By PIERRE J. HUSS

International News Service Staff Correspondent

BERLIN, April 24 (INS)—Using the same strategy that broke the back of the Polish army, German troops in Norway are tightening a pincers grip on British and Norwegian forces in the so-called Hamar-Elverum rectangle, Nazi military authorities asserted today.

In substantiation of claims that the Allies suffered a "crushing defeat" at Lillehammer yesterday, Nazi sources made known that several transport planes loaded with Canadian prisoners had landed in Berlin.

The prisoners were taken immediately to regional concentration camps, it was said.

SEIZE BRITISH ARMS

The vast extent of the British defeat was portrayed in an official announcement claiming the capture of 20 machine-guns, six anti-tank guns and 1,000,000 rounds of infantry ammunition, the latter of British origin.

The same communique forecast a large-scale British troop landing attempt at German-held Narvik and announced the arrival of British naval reinforcements as well as troop transports off the Norwegian port.

In connection with the alleged Lillehammar defeat, the official German news agency DNB charged that special maps of Norway, printed by the British war office, had been seized.

This was cited as "documentary proof" that the British had planned an invasion of Norway long before the German occupation.

Badly bombed and weakening under persistent Nazi hammer-blows, the British are withdrawing further inland, German headquarters asserted, and presumably soon will find themselves surrounded in a pocket from which they cannot escape.

DENY SEA BATTLE

German troops in Norway are rapidly being reinforced with armored cars and other mechanized equipment while the British, on the other hand, are being severely handicapped by ceaseless and successful German air raids on their bases, it was said.

Stockholm reports of a new sea battle in the Skagerrak were denied. German submarine chasers are active there in search of British submersibles, it was said, and the explosions heard yesterday probably were those of Nazi depth charges.

Battleship's Death Dive Described

LONDON, April 24 (AP)—The official Norwegian telegraph bureau's account of the alleged sinking of Germany's 26,000-ton battleship Gneisenau—"bow first, with three propellers racing in the air, amid a big area of flaming oil"—was published today in a Stockholm dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph (British news agency).

Earlier Norwegian reports of the destruction of the Gneisenau were quoted yesterday in a statement in the House of Lords by Lord Hankey, minister without portfolio.

The Norwegian telegraph bureau, which is operating "somewhere in Norway," said the alleged sinking occurred in the early phase of the German occupation of Norway during an attack on Oslo fjord. This account said the battleship was hit twice at 1400 yards by guns of the Oskarborg fort and by torpedoes from a torpedo battery.

The Germans tried to run the ship ashore but she sank rapidly, bow first, the Norwegian-British account said

(The Gneisenau was completed only in December, 1936, and although classified as a battleship had the speed of a battle cruiser, more than 27 knots. The British reported her sistership, the Scharnhorst, damaged in a battle off Norway April 9 with the British battle cruiser Renown.)

How War Tax Hits Briton

LONDON, April 24 (AP)—Statisticians, after studying Britain's new war budget, estimated today that increased taxes on beer, tobacco, postage and telephone calls would cost the average man one shilling, seven-pence, or about 40 cents, a week.

This is based on an estimate that the average Briton buys 2½ pints of beer a week, smokes 70 cigarettes, posts five letters and makes seven telephone calls.

British Claim 20 Planes Over Week-end

LONDON, April 24 (AP)—A Reuters (British news agency) dispatch from Stockholm today said that British and Norwegian anti-aircraft guns had shot down 20 German planes in Norway during the last week-end.

Nazis in Buses Driven Over Cliff

STOCKHOLM, April 24 (AP)—Three Norwegian bus drivers, pressed into service to transport German troops, were reported today to have driven their vehicles headlong over a cliff, killing themselves and most of their 180 Nazi passengers.

The story was told by Reidar Haanes, sports writer for a Norwegian newspaper, on his arrival here.

Britain Asks Soviet Trade Pact Terms

LONDON, April 24 (AP)—Britain has invited Russia to put forward concrete proposals for a trade agreement, having regard to Britain's paramount object of preventing war supplies from reaching Germany, the government informed Commons today.

This report was made by R. A. Butler, under-secretary for foreign affairs, who added that no date had been fixed for the return of the British ambassador, Sir William Seeds, to Moscow. The ambassador returned to London several weeks ago on leave.

Sir Victor Warrender, the admiralty's parliamentary secretary, declined to state the hour of arrival of the first German warship to invade Norway and the date of the admiralty receiving information of the German attack, but he assured a questioner that the belief 48 hours had elapsed was "quite wrongly founded."

Geoffrey Mander, opposition Liberal, asked for assurance that in the event of "further aggression" against neutral European states, the overseas possessions of such states would not be permitted to be used as bases for enemy action.

PROMISES ACTION

Prime Minister Chamberlain replied that such action would be taken as required in the interests of allied security.

British-Russian trade negotiations were suspended when Russia invaded Finland. Before the outbreak of the European war Britain and France tried for months to line up the Soviet Union with their bloc against Germany, only to be defeated when Russia signed non-aggression and other accords with the Reich in August.

Butler also told the House that both Canada and Britain are considering the status of Greenland, a colony of German-occupied Denmark.

A spokesman for the government told the House that Danish residents in England will not be treated as enemy aliens.

"Many of them are anxious to assist this country in its struggle against the aggressive tyranny of which Denmark has been made a victim," the spokesman said.

TAX MEASURE PENDING

Still to be considered in Parliament was the $10,000,444,000 budget, containing new tax measures, which was submitted yesterday by Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir John Simon.

UNEASINESS GROWS

The public, as well as Parliament, accepted calmly the government's proposals to take at least five-eighths of the nation's purchasing power to finance the war efforts.

They acquiesced patiently in their leaders' policy of keeping military operations secret until the strategic situation warrants giving a more complete picture of events which may mark a decisive phase of the war.

PRAYER WON BACK SIGHT

PITTSFIELD, April 24—The healing power of prayer was attributed today by Francis H. Soutier, 24-year-old newsdealer, for a miraculous return of his sight.

Blind for six years, Soutier declared that his prayers and prayers of his friends had wrought the miracle.

Although a Protestant, he had made the Novena of Grace last year at St. Joseph's Catholic Church and had visited Our Lady of Lourdes shrine in Lebanon, N. Y. Because of illness this year, he could not attend the novena but stated that "three friends made it for me."

Meanwhile, telephone calls and telegrams poured in on him from all parts of the United States and Canada. Asked if he intended to go to Boston to consult specialists Soutier said he intended to leave well enough alone and stick right to his newspaper business.

finally asked Woodman to leave his house. Then Goldberg related how he trailed his wife and Woodman to the Atleboro rest camp and found them in a cabin after they had registered as man and wife.

"I smashed down both doors of the cabin and found my wife, dressed in pajamas, hiding in a small bathroom. In the bedroom Woodman sat on the bed, partly undressed," Goldberg testified.

"I dragged my wife into the room and threw her on the floor. I said to her, 'This is a beautiful way for you to be acting, with a child waiting for you at home!'"

Woodman testified Goldberg had given him money, an automobile and promised to open up another drug store for him to manage in return for aiding in getting a divorce.

Woodman, who lives in Jasset st., Newton, said he already had pleaded guilty to assault and battery on Mrs. Goldberg during a trip to the New York World's Fair and had been placed on probation in Fall River court.

Nash testified he bought cigars and newspapers at Goldberg's drug store and that Goldberg engaged him to drive him and two other men on Aug. 9, paying for gas and oil. Nash said he didn't know what it was all about.

Marion Miller Brings Tango-Mango Dance to Globe Stage

Conga Outdated, Says Burlesquer

"The Conga's dead: Long live the Tango-Mango" is Marion Miller's new rallying cry.

La Miller, always first with the latest, comes to the Globe on Friday with this new dance creation that she asserts will make the Conga as dated as last semester's map of Europe.

To judge from past performances, the new show's star will be as welcome as Boston's tardy spring. She has always been one of this burlesque house's most popular attractions.

Appropriately, the fetching Miss Miller is assisted by a great bevy of the circuit's most come-hither performers. These include dynamic Joan Collette, Irene Cornell and Marjorie Roy.

Keeping comedy in the forefront of the stage goings-on will be Hank Henry, Benny Moore, Harry Ryan, Billy Fields, Bob Alder and Charles Kay.

In the vaudeville division will be the Six Melody Men with Julia Starr, the Bolero Bombshell, the Foolish Virgins dancing act and the Devil's Boop-a-da-Doops specialty act.

The screen program, starting daily at 9 a. m. and carrying on between the three complete burlesque shows, will be topped by two feature attractions and will include shorts and newsreels.

As usual, the Thursday night show will be highlighted by the radio amateur audition, which takes place on the Globe stage weekly in addition to the regular stage and screen show. The sensational Mayita will end her engagement here with the Thursday night show.

N. Y. Audiences Back Up Hub Critics

By PEGGY DOYLE

NEW YORK, April 24—The Tin Woodsman, the Scarecrow and the Cowardly Lion, reunioning at Dinty Moore's over vast orders of corned beef-and-cabbage the other night, are keeping their fingers crossed for "Keep Off the Grass . . ."

If the new Ray Bolger-Jimmy Durante-Jane Froman-Ilka Chase starring musical, opening at the Shubert Monday night, is as swell as it is rumored to be, it will mean a Broadway hit for all three of them.

Meaning that "it's in the bag" for Jack Haley, late Tin Woodsman in "The Wizard of Oz" and currently convulsing 'em in his Broadway come-back hit musical, "Higher and Higher" . . . With the exception of Walter Winchell, the New York critiques were lukewarm compared to the Hub's highly enthusiastic reviews.

"But the public seconded your motion," Haley pointed out, "and business is great. Turned away 500 at the Saturday matinee."

That reminded Bert (Cowardly Lion) Lahr — since Dec. 6 co-starring with Ethel Merman on Broadway in "Du Barry Was A Lady"—that this enormously successful musical comedy had the same history . . . here and there . . . and now he has nothing to worry about.

And speaking of worry, you'd hardly recognize "Deadpan" Lahr, the benign benedict, these days . . . He actually SMILES offstage . . . And the night we saw him he was Lahrfing (excuse it please) and swapping backstage yarns of days agone with Haley in most uncharacteristic fashion . . . He and his friends blame it all on Mildred, his new bride.

A LOT OF WEIGHT

But he isn't any happier than that young opportunist, six-year-old Jackie Haley . . . Jackie, out walking with his nurse in Central Park yesterday, met up with some non-pro Dead Enders . . . They got fresh—and Jackie got bragging . . . "Oh yeah-h-h-h!!" was all they said to Jackie's spunky recital of his father's footlights achievements.

"And so, Dad," coaxed the lad, "couldn't you put on your Tin Woodsman costume (it weighs all of 40 pounds—still another argument in favor of a smart Broadway musical) and get Bert and Ray to wear their Cowardly Lion and Scarecrow outfits and I'll show those kids who's a linker . . . Aw, gee, Dad, say yes, it'll mean an awful lot to me."

Dorchester's proud boast, Ray Bolger, for one, will hardly have the time, fond as he is of Jackie . . . He is rehearsing day and night for "Keep Off The Grass," in which he not only dances but sings and appears in sketches . . . Incidentally, the entire action takes place in Central Park . . . Sunnie O'Dea, cute as a button, is his new partner . . . Boston's Johnny McManus, brother of the assemblyman, Lawrence F. McManus, is the musical director.

Still a third Boston angle is represented by Jimmy McHugh, who, with Al Dubin, was responsible for the score of "Streets of Paris," have done the same service for "Keep Off the Grass."

Scollay-Modern Offers New Bill

Aimed to please the wildest variety of patrons is the new bill due Friday on the Scollay and Modern screens.

Priscilla Lane

There is obvious, folksy comedy in "Three Cheers for the Irish" story of an Irish-American family, and power and poignancy in "Of Mice and Men," beautifully made screen version of John Steinbeck's great story.

"Three Cheers for the Irish" features Thomas Mitchell, Priscilla Lane, Dennis Morgan and Alan Hale in a story about a retired New York policeman who finds life a bit difficult when his daughters encourage him to run for alderman. Mitchell's policeman is the picture's chief charm.

Burgess Meredith, now starring in the successful Broadway revival, "Liliom" is co-starred with Betty Field and Lon Chaney, Jr., in "Of Mice and Men." All three give outstanding portrayals.

RKO Boston Stars Al Bernie

RKO Boston initiates Friday as opening-day, beginning this week, and announces as its stage show headliner Al Bernie one of Broadway's favorite impersonators.

Next in importance on the bill is the Cappy Barra Harmonica Ensemble, youthful mouth-organ virtuosos seen in the Deanna Durbin-starring screen hit, "Mad About Music." Other acts in this new RKO vaudeville revue will include Demay, Moore and Martin, sophisticates of satire, the Novak Sisters, gymnasts, and one other act.

The two first-run screen features are "Torpedo Raider," filmed with the co-operation of the British Admiralty with Barry Mackay and Betty Balfour co-starred, and "The Showdown," with William Boyd in his newest Hopalong Cassidy adventure.

'Light That Failed' At Bowdoin Square

"The Light That Failed," with Ronald Colman starred in the film version of the Rudyard Kipling classic, opens a three-day engagement on Bowdoin Square screen starting today. On the same bill will be "The Man From Dakota," Metro picture with Wallace Beery, Dolores Del Rio and John Howard.

Mickey Rooney Is Boy Inventor

Early one evening, in the year 1854, a family by the name of Edison stepped off the gangplank of the riverboat "Ruby," which plied up and down the St. Clair, a river connecting Detroit and Port Huron.

The Edisons had emigrated from Ohio to Michigan, then regarded as far west, because Samuel Edison, head of the family, believed it was the opportune moment to establish himself in business there.

Accompanied by his wife and five children, the youngest of whom was Thomas Alva, then 7, he proceeded to purchase a large and comfortable home, with a view of the lake and grounds for the children to play.

In this same setting, a celebration was held recently commemorating the ninety-third anniversary of Port Huron's most illustrious son—the boy, who arrived with his parents back in 1854 and spent the next 10 years of his life there, laying the foundation of his great inventive genius.

Port Huron, population now 31,361, still recalls the tousled haired youngster whose insatiable curiosity set the community on its ears more than once, such as the time he fed Michael Oates, a schoolmate, seidlitz powders "to make him fly."

It was really during these Port Huron years, they will tell you, that the ideas for many of his later inventions were born. For in the crude laboratory his mother let him set up in the basement of their home he experimented continuously.

It is with these early struggles that Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's new picture, "Young Tom Edison," deals. The picture, which had a part recently in Port Huron's 93d anniversary celebration in honor of the great inventor, opens tomorrow on Loew's State and Orpheum screens. In the role of Thomas Alva Edison, Mickey Rooney offers a vivid and believable character.

Comparing his young Tom with old photographs of Edison at the time he was 14, an amazing resemblance is found.

The story describes Tom's boy hood, his struggles, his pranks and the warm, sympathetic family life he enjoyed. His mother in particular, recognized that she had what modern parents call, "a problem child" on her hands and beat every effort toward shaping her son's gifts toward their destined end.

VIRGINIA WEIDLER and Mickey Rooney in "Young Tom Edison," opening tomorrow on Loew's State and Orpheum screens. It is the film story of the great inventor's boyhood.

Sick, Hungry Find Solace At Shelter

When a fellow needs a friend . . .

That's when the Temporary Home of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, and motherly matron Mrs. Jean G. Rood steps in.

Bruised, heartsick, cold and hungry they come to Mrs. Rood.

She takes them in, gives them a bath first of all, then feeds and clothes them. After a medical examination, the youngsters—boys up to 12, girls up to 16 years of age—are admitted to play and sleep in dormitories with the other small citizens.

A typical day consists of: Reveille at 7; breakfast at 7 30; school in their own school room from 9 to 12; lunch at 12; school from 1:30 to 3:30 again; a play period from 3 30-5:15; then wash up, supper, and early to bed.

The children come to the home after their cases have been reported by teachers, courts, or other social agencies. Some of them have suffered actual physical cruelty. Some have been exposed to situations that are morally corrupt and degrading.

They all come to a home that looks more like a dormitory in a select prep school than a charitable organization. The building, a square-set, four story brick structure on Parker st., Roxbury, is set in lawns and shrubbery, flanked by a playground.

They stay for an average of two weeks, leave strengthened and restored. The society is asked to help 17,000 such cases a year, spends an average of $240,000, $15,000 of which is used by the home. The funds come from private donations and community chests.

THE CRUSHING VOTE—282 to 97—by which the House of Representatives passed the Logan-Walter Bill is a clear warning both to the Administration and to the New Deal leaders in the Senate.

The purpose of the bill is to check the growth of bureaucratic tyranny by making the arbitrary rules and decisions of federal boards and bureaus subject to judicial review, in order to protect and preserve the rights and liberties of citizens.

The favorable vote was essentially nonpartisan.

For while it is true that all but a few Republicans voted for the bill, it is also true that the bill commanded likewise A SUBSTANTIAL MAJORITY AMONG THE DEMOCRATS.

Undoubtedly, the 282 Representatives who supported the measure did so out of a sincere conviction that the establishment of 130 irresponsible Federal agencies, vested with the power to pronounce law, is a dangerous threat to our democratic form of government.

It is not unfair to say, however, that these Representatives were fully aware of the fact that the people want the Logan-Walter Bill to become law; and, on so vital an issue, even a majority of the Democrats preferred to heed the popular will and welfare rather than to bow down once more to an Administration "mandate."

The bill at present is locked in a Senate committee, where the Administration hopes to keep it until the session ends.

The same bill was passed by the Senate once before, and it will certainly be passed by the Senate again if it is allowed to come to a new vote.

If, on the other hand, the New Dealers succeed in stifling the bill now, they will give the Republican Party one of its best campaign issues for November.

"PYGMALION," George Bernard Shaw's fanciful story, in which an untutored flower girl from the streets of London was schooled in perfect speech and manners until she became the cultured queen of foremost drawing rooms, is to have a real life parallel in Massachusetts.

The stage here is the Dartmouth High School, where a course in etiquette and social deportment has been announced for interested boys and girls.

Of course, the aim is not so high nor the purpose so ambitious as that of the motion picture, "Pygmalion," though the theory is much the same.

If a boy is able to trip the light fantastic without tripping his partner, everyone will be satisfied.

THE UNTUTORED GIRL OF "PYGMALION" — SAME GIRL AFTER CULTURE COURSE

Will Dartmouth Duplicate Feat of Shaw's Famous Comedy-Drama?

In short, Dartmouth has sufficient courage to face the fact that all too often otherwise brilliant students are needlessly handicapped by ignorance of such everyday matters as the proper knife to use at dinner, the accepted way to hold a teacup, the gracious manner of declining an invitation or the most effective method of introducing strangers.

Knowledge of this kind is useful wherever one goes and as long as he lives—frequently more useful than Latin, algebra, trigonometry and kindred subjects which are generally put aside on graduation day and quickly forgotten.

Other cities and towns may be expected to watch Dartmouth's adventure into this new field of public education.

Besides, there is always the possibility that the youthful appetite for culture may so surpass initial hopes that eventually the manners and speech of young men down in the Southeastern part of the State will put Harvard in the shade, while their sisters will be so "Pygmalionized" that Back Bay and Brookline "debs" will have just cause to fear their competition in the world of society and matrimony.

The Price of Peace

COWS spend the dreamy summer days . . . in pastures green where they can graze . . . or underneath the willows cool . . . stand knee-deep in a weedy pool . . . while we, with our unrest and toil . . . our hurry and our mad turmoil . . . and work that never seems to cease . . . envy them their content and peace.

And yet, why envy them, for they . . . though placid, live but for today . . . live only for today—and now . . . There's no Tomorrow for a cow.

HOW DO YOU like your eggs? Perhaps this introduction to this pillar of palpitating perspicacity calls for an explanation. It's this way. That great newspaper man, Sisley Huddleston, said when he finally convinced himself he personally could not save the world for democracy he felt better. I am trying to achieve the same state of mind. My system is: At night I read all the war news and make voluminous notes. In the morning I tear the notes up and write about something else. Eggs, for instance. Maybe it's a bum system. But, anyway, as I was saying how do you like your eggs? I like mine: 1. Medium boiled in cup. 2. Poached. 3. Plain omelette. 4. Fried. 5. Scrambled. 6. Cold hard boiled. I do not like eggs in malted milk.

WHY DO COLLEGE GIRLS DRESS SO MUCH ALIKE?

Success Awaits Her Who Shows Individuality, Durling Says

THE BEGINNING of wisdom in a husband is the realization it is a woman's nature to want to be something in her own right. So, mister, if your wife wants to write a novel, be president of a club or play shortstop on a soft ball baseball team, encourage her . . . "I am 12 years older than my husband," writes a feminine client, "and we are happy and getting happier all the time."

COLLEGE GIRLS dress alike, talk alike, act alike. When you've seen one campus queen of today you've seen them all. If some college girl would dress differently, do her hair differently and refuse to wear bobby socks, she would probably have all the campus gables at her heels.

WHY the collegiate epidemic of blaming the referee for the loss of games? The losers did not whine like that in the olden days. Is this whimpering caused by the Communistic invasion of the campus?

BYRON ASKED: But—Oh! Ye lords of ladies intellectual, inform us truly, have they not hen pecked you all? I don't know Sinclair Lewis well enough to ask him how Dorothy Thompson treats him at home . . . B. Mussolini please note advice by R. W. Emerson: "March without the people, and you march into night. Their instincts are a finger pointing of Providence, always turning toward real benefit."

MY GIRL FRIEND wrote column about me once and gave me a good send off, but said "he just horrid before breakfast." Ever since I have been getting up and having breakfast first. Good slogan for the U. S. A. this time would be: "A GOOD DEFENSE IS THE BEST OF FENSE." "What do you mean no First Lady ever born in the West?" writes California client "Mrs. Hoover was born in Monterey, Cal." Sir, Mrs. Hoover lived in Monterey, but was born in Waterloo, Ia.

-:- -:- MY DAY

WASHINGTON, April 24—I happened to notice in the newspaper yesterday, that the Metropolitan Opera Guild in New York city is making its drive for the last $100,000 of the million dollars which they are collecting. This may seem a purely New York city interest, but if any of you have enjoyed the matinee radio broadcasts as I have, you will perhaps feel as I do that this is one in which everybody in the country has a stake.

Of course, opera is given at different times in different places all over the country. Just as in Europe, in certain cities, one thinks of the opera not as belonging to that city, but as being representative of the country and a world interest in music. So I think we can claim in New York city that the opera represents a national interest and even a world interest. At this time, when it is so hard to think of things which draw us together instead of splitting us apart, music and art seem to be the things where there still is an opportunity to have a common appreciation.

I WAS GLAD last evening to have the opportunity of meeting Dr. and Mrs. John Rothstein before they left the country. He is the director of the Tate Gallery in London, and has been in Canada and here looking after some of the works of art belonging to his nation, and in general getting a picture of the interest of people in painting. He encouraged me greatly by saying that he felt our government program had been remarkably good in this country and had awakened a far greater art consciousness.

MRS. ROOSEVELT

Urges Aid for Opera

I received this morning a group of high school girls from Coral Gables, Florida, who wear a most attractive Spanish costume. I think as they go sight-seeing in Washington they will attract considerable attention.

THIS IS THE SEASON for young things to visit this city and I am glad that this is so, for it is a beautiful season here. There must be inspiration in just the physical beauty of the grounds and buildings which represent the government of this country.

I was interested also to find how much impressed these young people are when they have an opportunity to see and talk with some of the men and women who are actually in government positions.

The group from Barnard College, which I told you was coming last night, was a very interesting group. Some of them are anxious to earn their livings in government service, others anxious to discover how they could be useful as citizens in their communities. All of them are becoming more conscious through their contacts here that government must rely on human beings for carrying out any plans or theories.

DIST. ATTY. O'DWYER: Fred Kaplan, the bridge champion who was defense counsel for Lepke, was asked to represent some of the men you indicted in the Murder, Inc. cases. Kaplan asked for time to consider it, and went to the Cavendish Bridge Club, where he proceeded to conduct a crime quiz. He asked Baron von Zedtwitz, Oswald Jacoby, and other bridge champs who congregate there, to identify the following: "The Dasher," "Gangi" and "Kid Twist." Each was properly identified by all present . . . And so Kaplan notified the prisoners that he would not act as their defense counsel.

FCC: Andre Kostelanetz and his wife, Lily Pons, have been speaking—via an amateur short wave set owned by one of their friends—to another friend in South America. The conversations usually were lengthy ones, and very frequently there would be interferences from other amateur broadcasters. DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE agents from Boston are investigating shipment of twenty revolvers to an address in a South Shore town . . to a person they know to be an alien. The story of the investigation, when it breaks, may be one of the most sensational that G-men have uncovered—especially here in Boston . . . The agents are holding up the present shipment, waiting and searching for their man . . . One delivery to the same address was completed three weeks ago, it was revealed.

G-men know that when a man wants to buy a gun for illegal purposes, he "plants" an address to which to have the weapon delivered . . . When he has picked the gun up, he disappears . . . The only way officers have of tracing a pistol is through the man to whom it was sold and the address where he was living. If that has been faked, the difficulties of the police have been increased immeasurably . . . G-men are investigating the possibility of a major plot, criminal or otherwise.

MRS. HENRY CABOT LODGE, JR., wife of the younger senator from Massachusetts, has confided to friends in Washington that she expects to be in the hospital in September, awaiting a visit from the stork . . The Senator and his wife already have two children, both boys, George and Henry, 13 and 10 years old . . Mrs. Lodge was Emily Sears, daughter of the Boston physician, Dr. Henry Sears.

A PRISON SENTENCE opens a new world to this girl . . . She was young, just 17, and not beautiful, and her home in Ogunquit, Me., was not a happy one . . She met a 19-year-old boy and ran away with him to find a life she had not known, to be married in his home town of New Bedford . . . They ran out of money and wanted work; instead, there was a holdup—for 48 cents—and a man was shot . . . In Dedham court Harrison Howes, Jr., got life for manslaughter, and plump, unloved Helen E. Hayes got two and a half years in the house of correction . . . Judge Thomas H Dowd scored parents who "bring children into the world and throw them to the dogs of fate."

But prison may be something different for this girl. For the first time, she told Sheriff Samuel H. Wragg, she's met people who are genuinely interested in her, in helping . . . court and jail officers are "so good" to her . . . she's the only woman prisoner in the place and she has the run of her wing, her own bathtub . . . She knits, and is a model prisoner; she tells of her days with Howes, when for almost a full week she lived in a cold cottage, without furniture or clothes to keep her warm, and sucked oranges to stay alive . . . When she comes out, officers say, her life will be before her.

WATCH FOR A CHANGE in Cambridge taxi rates in a couple of days that will have state-wide reverberations . . . That may cause a lowering of taxicab rates all through New England. Frank McGann, head of the Yellow Cab there, has been making a study of rates, which are now the same as Boston—25 cents first quarter mile, five cents each quarter after—and is going to make the change.

HOLLYWOOD BIDS HIM RETURN

By Louella O. Parsons

John Barrymore

HOLLYWOOD, April 24—John Barrymore's escapades and even his little innuendoes against his home town—Hollywood—haven't hurt him. Two companies I learn, are interested in bringing the great Barrymore back to Hollywood. One of them is Warners and the other 20th Century-Fox. I have an idea Jawn will heed the call of Zanuck for he would have a chance to do in "The Great Profile" a little of what he did in "My Dear Children

The payoff on the whole 20th Century-Fox deal, which story, by the way, comes to me direct from New York, is that Jawn was about to sue 20th Century-Fox for "The Great Profile" which he claims is a libel against him. He was offered such a fancy price for his services and those of Elaine that Elaine has practically decided they will accept. The story is based on the life of the one and only Barrymore

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD: Richard Ainley, Constance Bennett's heart-beat, took a test at Warners today; Andrea Leeds is in St. Vincent's Hospital for a major operation; is the Matty Fox-Patrica Morison romance cooling; she has been stepping out with Freddie Brisson; Anita Louise and Buddy Adler will wed May 18 with a large church wedding. Ida Lupino and Wesley Barrie will be two of the bridesmaids; rumor is that Conrad Veidt is on his way here to test for the role of the general in "Escape"; Jeanne Cagney checked in at the Good Samaritan Hospital today. She had two wisdom teeth extracted Joy Hodges, looking like a million, planed in today for a visit with her friends and to listen to several movie offers; Elsa Maxwell is never too sick to entertain her friends and so on Friday she will give a dinner at Constance Bennett's house in honor of the William Paleys; Bette Davis sails tomorrow on the Monterey for Honolulu; Dorothy Lamour, already there, has asked for ten days more to get her health back

I NEARLY SWALLOWED my grapefruit whole this morning when I heard that Orson Welles is leading the procession of movie possibilities for the Alexander Woollcott role in "The Man Who Came to Dinner." Orson would like nothing better than to follow in the footsteps of Woollcott, Monty Woolly and Clifton Webb and I'll bet he'd be good too. The young genius has been unmercifully ribbed for his movie fiasco and up to date, although it has cost RKO a pretty penny, he hasn't made a picture. I hope that Welles was misquoted in the interview in which he was supposed to have said: "I shall proceed to refer to movies only in terms of contempt." Orson, I am afraid, is a young man who talks too much.

TWO-MINUTE STORY

IT WAS evening, and the rain was falling in a steady downpour. A fair-sized boy wandered toward home, though his mind was opposed to this action.

He lived with his aunt. Of course, she was kind, but all his chums had parents.

Was he to live an unhappy, miserable life, without any parents, without anyone to watch over him lovingly?

BOYS in his district all had parents. Couldn't he have the same privileges other boys had; the same kind of life, a more happy, full one, not so lonely as his had been? He didn't seem to care for his aunt.

His thoughts were in a quandary as to which way to turn; which life to accept; a life all by himself, to be his own boss, make his own living; or to go home and be bossed around, as it seemed to him.

The former was the more inviting. He turned, started for the other side of town.

The rain had stopped a bit, but it was dark, dreary and lonely. No stars or moon in the sky above to cheer him.

Now he sold papers; lived in the basement of a tenement, in which he helped the janitor; ate with the money he earned, and had no time for play or amusement.

This was the life he had wanted, only he hadn't expected it was to be so hard. However, he was happy, except for something—something that was missing. What he wanted he did not know; then one day—he had just returned to his route. Receiving his papers, he glanced at the headline. On that paper, in dark letters: "Fire Ruins Home in Franklin St. . . . Unidentified Woman Burned in Blaze . . . This Picture Was Found Untouched by Blaze . . . Only Clue to Identification."

THE PICTURE—he recognized it. He was frozen to the spot; an empty feeling came over him. He realized now what that other life had been really like; what his aunt had meant to him. Though he was dazed, it came to him clearly, though too late, and he knew—HE HAD BEEN WRONG.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

I DOUBT if there's a more vicious form of addiction than day-dreaming. Alcohol will rot your flesh, morphine will wither your brain — but day-dreaming will leech the fiber from your very soul.

Before we go further, get this straight. Day-dreaming is not to be confused with ambition. It is not a part of that slow mental weaving by which we create the design of our lives.

It is definitely a FADE-OUT from real life . . . a RUNAWAY into glamorous and impossible realms. And as such it's a deadly menace to your character.

YOU LOOK surprised; you like to day-dream, don't you? It's fun. Particularly when you're worried and blue. It helps you forget. A little pause, and then you're off . . . adrift in the Land of Maybe. And before you know it, everything's changed. All your problems have vanished—or been solved. You're beautiful, brilliant and beloved. Nobody's mean to you. Nobody expects you to do things you don't want to do . . . or criticize you if you fail.

In short, it's an absolutely perfect universe, and you're its prize package.

That's the way you feel about day-dreams, isn't it? And that—though you may not have realized it—is exactly the way the drunkard feels about his glass of whiskey or the addict feels about his shot in the arm. And for the best of reasons.

They're all in the same class—Booze, Dope and Day-Dreams. THEY'RE ALL ESCAPES . . . ESCAPES from reality, ESCAPES from responsibility, ESCAPES from the most unpleasant job on earth—that of tackling life as it is and ourselves as we are.

WHAT'S WRONG in escaping through a day-dream? Just this: You delude yourself into a condition where you get everything you want without the slightest effort on your own part. You may do this once—you may do this twice—but if you continue to do it you'll become incapable of exerting effort when you come out of your dream.

You'll resent every challenge and criticism. In brief, you'll be too soft to face life, just as the drunkard and the addict are too soft to take the bettering of common existence.

ANIMALS and children are an editor's favorite subject for appealing pictures . . . and the same evidently holds true for the Boston women who have seriously taken up the art of pottery . . .

These amateur potters who gather around their own little kiln and spend many hours satisfying the urge to create something pleasing with their hands, are exhibiting their handiwork at Courtright House this week . . . The assortment of animals arranged among the lovely glazed lamp pedestals, bowls and trays, add variety and appeal to the exhibit . . .

A small turquoise glazed rhinoceros, the handiwork of Mrs. Reginald W. Bird, came in for a great deal of admiration as did Mrs. Frederic Parker's fantail pigeon bookends . . . Mrs. Parker was on hand at the opening to acknowledge the friendly greetings of visitors and toured the rooms with her daughters, Mrs. Holliday Philbin, mother of those two popular post debs, Holly and Maise Philbin, and Mrs. Henry P. King, who has just returned from Florida . . . Mrs. King shares her mother's enthusiasm for pottery and is fashioning some birds and other artistic objects in her spare time . . .

Mrs. Robert Stevenson, one of the most active of the potters, tended the guest book and had a friendly welcome for each visitor . . . She is exhibiting a collection of delicately moulded and glazed Chinese objects . . .

Mrs. Henry Cleveland, who keeps her married daughter's Gotham apartment well stocked with colorful lamps, ash trays and pottery bowls, is exhibiting again this year and Mrs. Edwin S. Dodge's set of chessmen is a masterpiece of detail and originality . . . Another difficult achievement is Mrs. J. D. Phillips' mosaic tray which has a hand painted Oriental design under the glaze . . .

Touring the gallery and enjoying the work of their friends were Mrs. John C. Rice, Mrs. Robert Clark in a fetching plaid taffeta hat of red and purple; Mrs. G. W. W. Brewster, Miss Marian Edwards, Mrs. George Mumford, Mrs. Louis A. Frothingham, Mrs. Charles Francis Adams in a black ensemble with a straw visor hat; Mrs. Carl Keller and Miss Effie Whitman . . .

Good Manners

After-Dinner Coffee---A Hint

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

I like the custom of having after-dinner coffee served in the living-room, and I wonder why more hostesses don't seize the opportunity of capturing the ease and grace of this friendly custom.

The following letter from a reader who shares my enthusiasm for this custom, presents a special problem, reveals that guests need a little "directing" about the charm of this service. This hostess writes:

"I often serve my demi-tasse at my fireplace, but I notice that some people prefer to have a large cup of coffee with their dessert. In fact, at my last dinner, I had planned to have the coffee by the fireplace in my living-room, and one of my women guests asked for coffee, thinking that I had forgotten it. What would you have done in a case like this?

"I served the coffee at the table and no one ever knew that my plans were to have it by the fireplace. Should I have asked my guests' preference as to whether they prefer coffee at table or in the livingroom?"

If you know that the majority of the group dining informally with you are enthusiastic about having large cups of coffee with their dessert, the gracious thing is to bow to their wishes and have the coffee served at table. If you wish, you may ask their preference.

But I have a feeling that this particular guest of whom you write is not familiar with the grace of serving coffee in the living room.

I think that, if I had, like you, planned to serve the coffee in the living room, I would have been tempted to say, "It's so nice having coffee by the fireplace that I had planned to serve it there. Do you mind?"

BANS HUBBY'S HOME TOIL

CHICAGO, April 24 (INS) -- A wife should be queen and boss of her own home and the husband should mind his own business, circuit judge Cornelius J. Harrington ruled.

His decision came after Mrs. Anna M. Mack said of her husband, Lambert:

"He does the cooking, buys the groceries, does the laundry and buys the clothing for the children and me. I'm just a nursemaid to our sons, Thomas, 3, and John, 2, and I'm getting tired of it."

Lets' Have An Omlet

By MARTHA LEE

OMELETS are just as much at home on luncheon or supper tables as they are at breakfast time. And modern, streamlined breakfasts being what they are, this versatile egg dish may receive even more of the undivided attention of diners if it serves as the principal attraction for luncheon or supper.

An omelet which is both light light and fluffy, and substantial enough to act as the main dish of any meal is the asparagus omelet liberally sprinkled with grated American cheese. The addition of asparagus to the omelet gives it a new springtime taste—and a new springtime look, the fresh green asparagus contrasting pleasantly with the golden yellow of omelet.

The sprinkling of full-flavored American cheese gives the dish a final accent of flavor which makes this familiar favorite even more delectable.

ASPARAGUS OMELET

4 eggs
¼ cup milk
Salt, pepper
2 tbsp. butter
Cooked asparagus tips
Grated American cheese

Slightly beat two whole eggs and two yolks. Add the milk, and seasonings. Fold in two stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into a skillet in which the butter has been melted, and cook very slowly until almost done. Place in a slow oven until the top is "set." Cover half of the omelet with hot cooked asparagus tips, fold, sprinkle with grated cheese, and serve at once.

Well-balanced nutritionally, the asparagus omelet has all the flavor and eye appeal to make it a great favorite with every member of the family. It is simple enough to prepare so that it may well become a family favorite—and festive enough to be the featured main dish of a "company" luncheon.

Serve with French fried or baked potatoes, fresh green peas and a fruit dessert.

BUTTERED GREEN PEAS

Have peas as fresh as possible and shell just before cooking as flavor decreases rapidly after shelling. Cook uncovered in a small amount of boiling, salted water 10 to 25 minutes, or until just tender. A sprig of mint cooked with peas will add flavor. There should be almost no water left after cooking. Season with salt, pepper and butter. Allow ½ pound peas in the pod per portion. One pound peas yields about 1 cup cooked, shelled peas.

QUICK FRUIT DESSERT

6 ripe bananas
⅓ cup orange juice
4 tbsp. brown sugar
1 cup grated cocoanut.

Peel and cut bananas in half, lengthwise. Place in greased baking dish. Mix orange juice and brown sugar; pour over bananas, adding lemon juice if not tart enough. Sprinkle with cocoanut and bake in moderate oven (375 deg. F.) for 10 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

You Can Be Beautiful

Petal Foundation for Oily Skin

By ARLINE GOULD

YOU KNOW the sudden sinking feeling that hits you when you've overlooked something really important . . . well, we have it now!

Martin Pattern

We've talked so much about make-up foundation which glamourize those tender dears, the dry-skinned creatures, that we almost forgot the oily-complexioned girl who is so beset trying to keep her make-up mat and dull . . . the girl whose powder cakes from too much oil . . . and who feels she must forever dab at and cover up shine!

This is springtime . . . and if your face makes you feel blowsy when you so badly want it to look fresh and alluring as camellia petals . . . here is news of a perfect foundation. It's for exceptionally oily skin, and it's called a "hyperactive freshener" because it insures a petal skin for hours and hours, without a trace of shine!

It is a dew-light liquid, with a rich ivory tint that blends beautifully with your own skin . . . and if it is suspended a silken powder, but not a face powder! Exceptional astringency is one secret of its miraculous aid. You use your regular make-up after you've applied the freshener.

Shake the liquid thoroughly, apply it thinly with a pledget of cotton that's been moistened with cold water and squeezed out. Let it dry, brush off any excess . . . on with your make-up! If your skin is very oily, use it on the throat too so there will be no line of reparation on the perfect smoothness of your complexion!

If you'd like to learn about this non-shiny foundation to make exceptionally oily skins soft and dull as a petal, phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, week-days until 5:30, or write, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Kleptomania

By ANTHONY RUD

"WELL, well, well," said Prof. Fredericks and he stroked his beautiful, silken beard, "that sounds bad. Poor fellow. I am glad he came to the right man." He took his magnifying glass out of his pocket and studied the crown and coat of arms on the letter he was reading.

"Old nobility," he added, finished his coffee and repeated once more: "Poor fellow. I am glad he came to me."

"What is it, Alphonse?" His young wife looked admiringly up at her famous husband, who had finished his breakfast and prepared to leave for the university. "A new case?"

Prof. Fredericks, the famous psychiatrist, rang for his valet. "My hat and coat," he ordered, and then, turning to his wife, spoke gravely: "Dorothy, don't ask questions. You know medical professional secrecy. You should at last get used to it. I am not supposed and I am not willing to discuss my patients with you or anybody else."

The valet brought him his hat and coat and vanished again. "Of course, darling," she said and offered him her forehead. He kissed her good-by and left.

She waited until she heard his car going out of the courtyard and then rushed over to the breakfast table where he had left the letter. She smiled a little. Had he really forgotten to take the letter with him? The butler came to take the breakfast table out of the room. She took the letter up and asked: "Don't you think, Pinker, that men have much, much more vanity than women?"

"Yes, madam," Pinker answered and carried the table out of the room.

A TRAGIC TALE

Mrs. Fredericks sat down and read the letter. But her smile slowly vanished from her face. It was a letter on superb paper, and the sender was the name of one of the oldest families of European nobility. "Dear Prof Fredericks (the letter said): Inquiring for the first international authority on kleptomania, I was recommended to you. I ask you for an interview in a grave, yes, tragic matter, concerning my family, my wife. I need not ask you, of course, for secrecy.

"Two years ago I married. My wife belongs to one of the oldest families in Europe. The day after we had been married, I learned that she was suffering from an illness which, though it does not affect her physical well being, affects her mental health and gives me reason to be afraid of having the most unfortunate scandal. My wife is a kleptomaniac."

And then, the unfortunate husband went on to describe the symptoms of his wife's illness. He wrote about a few cases at which she had stolen silk from a department store, a golden cigarette case in the house of a friend, etc., and though she had until now not been found out and he had always returned the stolen things the next morning, they had experienced a few days ago, an incident which almost had led to scandal. They had been invited at the Prime Minister's house. Some time during the evening, about an hour after dinner, when the unfortunate husband and the Prime Minister had been sitting talking in the latter's library, both men had suddenly seen the woman take a very valuable diamond cross from a table. The husband, almost fainting with grievance and anger, wanted to take it away from her immediately but the Prime Minister, an understanding man, had kept him back.

She would suffer a terrible shock which might even make her desperate to the point of suicide if the husband made a scene in the presence of other people. The Prime Minister asked him to let her keep the cross and to send it back in the morning, and he had given the name of Prof. Fredericks as the only man who would be able to cure his wife

"MY LAST HOPE"

"These are the facts, my dear Professor," ended the letter, "and so I come to you as my last hope. I would like to bring you my wife for treatment. But, of course, I cannot tell her the truth. There is only one way of handling the matter, and only the utmost despair and grief makes me dare to ask the favor. May I come to your home and introduce my wife to you socially?"

Tears were running down Mrs. Fredericks' cheeks. "Poor man," she sighed, put the letter back into the envelope, and when the Professor came home in the afternoon, she gave it to him. "This morning you forgot this letter, Alphonse, my dear. I didn't throw it away as I thought it might be of importance."

"You didn't read it by any chance?" he asked and looked gravely into her eyes. She blushed, probably with anger, "Alphonse, why, that is not nice. You know I don't read your letters. You shouldn't say such things."

"Of course not. Pardon me. Foolish of me to say that. Of course, I did not really mean it." He put the letter back into his private pocket, cleared his throat again and said: "By the way, before I forget it. I'm expecting friends for tea tomorrow afternoon. A very charming couple. Prepare something nice, will you."

The next afternoon at 5 o'clock sharp the butler let a distinguished looking gentleman and a beautiful woman into the library where tea was prepared. The conversation was interesting and amusing, and after tea the man smoked a cigar and the two ladies joined them with cigarettes.

Suddenly the lady stood up, "Do you mind if I look around a little? You have such a beautiful place. Please don't bother." And before the hostess could rise the visitor approached a beautiful painting in another corner of the room.

The two men and Mrs. Fredericks became silent. They all stared in the direction of the woman who walked around, smiling, seemingly interested in paintings and furniture. Suddenly she approached the big writing desk on which Professor did his research work when he was at home. As if she was drawn by a mysterious magnet the lady approached the platinum watch covered with diamonds, which Prof. Fredericks had been given a few years ago by a grateful client, a member of a royal family. And suddenly she took the watch in her hands, her smile disappeared, she turned her back toward the three who sat there, breathlessly and stared at her.

When she turned around the watch was gone.

Her husband had become pale. Tears came into his eyes. "I can stand it any longer," he murmured. "I have to tell her. At once." Then he stood up.

"SHE HAS IT!"

Prof. Fredericks smiled understanding. "Please be quiet," he said to the excited husband and pushed him back to his seat. "Do not say a word. Leave it to me. I shall cure your wife."

"But the watch . . . She has it . . . I've seen it . . ."

"You send it to me in the morning," Prof. Fredericks smiled. "And tomorrow we'll start with the treatment. Will you send her along, let's say at the same time as today? You can tell her my wife is anxious to see her again. Aren't you, darling?"

His wife could only nod. Admiringly she looked up at her great husband.

A few minutes later the guests rose and said good-by to their charming hosts. After they had gone, Prof. Fredericks shook his head. "A tragic case," he said.

He did not know how tragic it was because he neither saw the couple nor his watch ever again.

Fire Kills 205 In Dance Hall

fire started near the door and spread quickly in the mass, which had been hanging for several years. A ventilating fan in the rear may have sucked the fire upon the helpless dancers who huddled near the bandstand in the rear.

"When I got there we dug among the bodies to bring them out and take them to hospitals. There are about 30 still in hospitals and more may die."

It was estimated that few among Natchez Negro families were unaffected. This city has a population of about 16,000, of which approximately 60 per cent is Negro.

V. H. Jeffries, a photographer, who reached the scene a short time after the disaster; said the walls and tin roof of the building remained in place but that the inside was gutted.

"Great quantities of dry moss had been hung on the walls for decoration," he said. "This caught fire in some way and the intense heat and fumes probably suffocated the victims.

"Men and women were sprawled grotesquely about on the floor like dead chickens, their clothing burned away and flesh seared. The fire started near the entrance and it seemed that the crowd fled to the rear, where they could not escape."

Most of the dead were found piled up near the orchestra stand away from the one exit.

At least a score or more persons were burned or injured in the stampede for the door after the fire started. All the city's doctors hurried to the scene and were assisted by firemen and others in aiding the stricken.

The coroner, also managing editor of the Natchez Democrat, said the janitor of the newspaper, attending the dance, was standing near the rear and escaped, but did not know what started the blaze.

U.S. Air Chief Admits Order to Aid Allies

By STANLEY CARROLL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, April 24 (INS)—Planes ordered by the U. S. Army were released to Britain and France only after the President's co-ordinating board was directed "by implication" to aid the Allies, Maj. Gen. H. H. Arnold, chief of the Army Air Corps, testified before the Senate Naval Affairs Committee.

"Was any statement made by any officer of the army or navy to the board to the effect that we help out the Allies by giving them assistance in special deliveries?" asked Sen. Walsh (D.) of Mass., committee chairman.

"By implication, yes," the general replied. "We're giving them production of our plants."

Arnold did not name the officer who gave the instructions by implication. He quickly assured the committee, however, that Allies orders for American war planes will not be permitted to delay deliveries of planes needed by the air corps.

"Plane manufacturers must take care of us first," he declared. "These foreign deliveries will, in most cases, be made simultaneously with American deliveries. However, we are giving our tactical units all the planes they can use at present."

JOHNSON RAPS SALES

Sharply condemning sales of modern American war planes to the Allies, Sen. Johnson (R.) of California, interjected:

"I can't understand why, when we are fighting to prepare this country for defense, we should release our airplanes to other countries."

Arnold admitted that the latest type combat planes are being released to foreign purchasers and that, in some cases, the army has accepted delivery delays. He cited that on one type of plane the army accepted a delay of seven months in delivery. This was done, he said, because a better plane could be obtained at the later date at the same price.

Plane sales to foreign purchasers, Arnold contended, have helped this nation's defense program by increasing production facilities here. He was emphatic in his assertion that no military secrets have been released in connection with the sales.

SECRETS IN GADGETS

"The secrets are in the gadgets, the instruments," he said, "and these we do not permit to go out in these planes. There are refusals going out all the time in connection with various gadgets. We do not permit their release."

Arnold said foreign nations have ordered about 4000 American planes, of which 580 have been delivered since February. Allied orders alone, he said, account for 3173 plane orders.

ULYSSES LUPIEN, Harvard first sacker who ran up such impressive fielding and hitting averages when he was wearing Crimson socks . . . and was signed by the Red Sox the day he played his last game for Harvard, when Harvard beat Yale 5 to 4 on June 24, 1939 . . . and went to their Scranton farm in the New York-Pennsylvania League, but was sent later to Little Rock for more seasoning when he failed to burn Jimmy Foxx out of a job . . . will be sold by the Sox, according to the boys who know. Then he will return to the major league wars, probably within a few weeks . . . Lupien himself has not yet been notified. In his last year at college he batted .442 and was voted the most valuable player in the Eastern Intercollegiate Baseball League.

PATROLMAN TOM COSTELLO, who directs traffic at Arlington and Beacon sts., isn't the only Boston policeman who has a private aircraft pilot's license . . . But Tom got his the hard way . . . Part of the examination for a private license consists of doing flying acrobatics for the cold eye of a federal inspector . . . And federal inspectors want accuracy. Tom took off from East Boston airport, which is a good deal like taking a test for a driver's license on Tremont st. at any 5:30 p. m. . . . The day was cloudy, and getting cloudier, but Tom went through the whole business till he had left to do only his two required tailspins . . . He cocked an eye at the inspector on the ground, and let go. He had just finished his first tailspin—which gives the sensation of being rolled down a hill in a barrel—when he noticed a cloud had hid him from the inspector's view. Tom gritted his teeth and went at it again . . . and again . . . and again . . . every time a cloud cut off his view. Finally, his head spinning and his nerves taut, he slipped in to land and went wearily over to the inspector to hear the decision . . . "The first two were all right," the inspector said

IF THERE EVER was any secret about how George Jensen happened to win Filene's golf tournament last Summer, and Matt Ott to run second, let's clear the situation up now . . . The two of them have been playing golf for five weeks so far this year . . . With snow on the turf, if you'll be so kindly! Last week Matt, in an overcoat, went 18 holes . . .

INTO THE COCOANUT GROVE next Monday comes Tiny Day and company, complete with Hammond organ . . . Tiny made such a hit at the Casa Madrid in Sarasota during the Winter (Winter!) that Mickey Alpert booked him into the Grove . . . That "and company" business is really Mrs. Day—who was Miss Miami a short while back.

Deep Channels Recommended

Recommendations for widening and deepening channels in Newburyport and Salem harbor have been made to Congress by army engineers. A channel in South River, Salem, 10 feet deep and 90 feet wide to Central wharf and 50 feet wide to the upstream end of Pickering wharf, with a branch channel and basin would cost $43,000 with $2100 annual maintenance.

For Newburyport, a continuous channel from sea to wharves to cost $102,000 with annual maintenance of $18,000 is proposed, local interests to provide one-third of the first cost. The channel would be 15 feet deep and 400 feet wide through the bar, and 12 feet deep and 200 feet wide to a widened turning basin in front of the wharves.

AUSTEN LAKE

Baseball Broadcasting As She Is Spoke

WELL FOLKS, THIS IS STATION WHAM, with your favorite word painter, Graham Snoozing, giving you the gruesome details on the Red Sox-Yankee's game by courtesy of Crunchies, the breakfast food with the ear-splitting smile. Here I am fans, literally perched in empty space like a mountain gazelle, looking down on that ultra-stupendous . . . I might almost say Cataclysmic game.

AUSTEN LAKE

Down below me, where the Red Sox and Yankees are putting on the last licks before going into this stupendous, almost I should say titanic, struggle, is the little pasture of green turf which is the cynosure of New England eyes. And now down there, spraddled on the steps of the Sox dugout, chin cupped in hand, the picture of concentrated acumen, I should almost say super-cerebral effort, is the beloved, sagacious and almost Machiavellian leader of the Red Sox, which are . . . they hope! on the way to snatch the American League gonfalon.

Think of it folks! Here is the ultra-stupendous focal moment of the springtime, the Red Sox versus the Yankees for a crack at the championship of this here-now terrestrial sphere. The air is literally rife with electric suspense, and as I gaze about me in the press aerie I am overwhelmed with the galaxy of literary talent, a very forte assemblage of geniuses, or should I say gen-ee-eye, Heh! Heh! who perch like buzzards on a fence wherever the big things of sport occur. There they are, getting paid fabulous, ultra-stupendous salaries for watching the same sights for which you, dear folks, peel off precious leaves from your bankrolls.

Now down there on the other side of the lush, I should almost say luxuriant turf which is the verdant chess board of which this super-spectacle is taking place, is Joe McCarthy, the foxy and beloved leader of the Yanks . . . O boy! Listen to that roar. The crowd, the great, big, fair-minded Boston public, is one vast seething, billowing wave of noise as Ted Williams trots out to take his place in right field—a soul-rending demonstration of loyalty and affection for the beloved Thumping Theodore! Its super-ultra-stupendous!

DOWN THERE WITH HIS CHIN CLAMPED on a box-rail—lots of bone in that chin, folks—buleeve you me!—is Judge K. M. Landis, the silver-polled, supreme overlord and arbiter extraordinary, who can cause strong men to blench with the tiniest crook of his finger . . . Wait! No! That isn't Landis, fans, that's Governor Leverett Saltonstall. That chin fooled me for a moment.

It looks like Jim Bagby for the Sox, that rubber-thewed and leather-sinewed fire-ball heaver, I might say a veritable hurler of Jovian thunderbolts. And Big Red Ruffing for the Yankees, that duralumin, steel-sheathed lad whose performance is utmost power with velvet smoothness. These two pitchers are paramount, the quintessence, the top of the bottle, triple-X and very fortissimo, so today we are seeing an epic in sheer, pulsating drama that will hark down the corridor of time.

And now, just before the collision, I have a moment to read you a few of the tons and tons of telegrams I have been receiving from Crunchie fans, a bushel at a time. Here's one from Lawrence, Mass., the Athens of America:

"Dear Graham—Your broadcast is ultra stupendous. In fact, you are paramount. Keep your throat open."

And that was signed Myrtle Ankle. O. K. Myrtle! Be assured folks

Kids Help Williams Snap Batting Slump

By BILL GRIMES

During the two games that the Red Sox played the Athletics on the holiday, Ted Williams couldn't buy a base hit. Teddy the Kid was particularly anxious that day to comb out a few hits. He'd have been highly elated to have lofted one into Williamsville. For, in the first place, his public was pulling for him to connect with a circuit drive. And, Teddy's public is aces with him. But, on that day, Teddy the Kid had an extra incentive spurring him on every time he went up to the plate. Two of his aunts from New York were in a box. They were even more excited than Teddy the Kid.

But, Teddy went hitless in the opener and didn't have any more success in the p. m. encounter. Then, came the rain, cold weather and snow. For three days, the Red Sox were idle. Teddy chaffed at the bit. He had let his public and his aunts down. That would never do.

So, before noon yesterday, Teddy the Kid came out of the runway to the field at Fenway Park, with Tom Daly's ball bag. And, that container was bulging with agates. He corralled three kids and started a pepper game. Teddy did the hitting. The kids did the shagging, aided and abetted by the screen behind home plate.

WORE DOWN HURLER

After loosening up for a half hour, Teddy the Kid and his cohorts moved out into the wide open spaces. One kid went out to the mound and the other two assigned themselves to center and right field.

For at least one hour, Teddy

Season's First Victory Still Evades Our Bees

SAFE AT THIRD is Eddie Miller of the Bees as Cookie Lavagetto, third sacker of the Dodgers, gets Catcher Herman Frank's throw too late. Umpire Babe Pinelli was right on top of the play. The Bees have yet to win a league game while the Dodgers have yet to lose a decision. Bees lost, 8 to 3.

BROOKLYN, April 24—Still seeking their first victory, the Bees will chase out after the Dodgers here at Ebbets Field this afternoon in the concluding game of their abbreviated series with hopes of knocking the Daffiness Boys off their loftly perch at the top of the National League.

Needless to say, Casey Stengel was no little disappointed over yesterday's loss for the upset was directly traceable to home run balls thrown by rookie Nick Strincevich and Dick Errickson.

The Bees got away to a nice start when Loane doubled, Hassett singled and both scored ahead of Maxie West who stroked a Tex Carleton pitch out of the park for his first home run of the season.

Nick Strincevich made a promising bow in the first inning but home run balls to Franks and Gilbert in the second inning resulted in five runs and a quick exit for the highly touted youngster. Dick Errickson was hurriedly rushed into action and Richard did right well until the sixth when he apparently tired and allowed a couple of hits before Gilbert lofted his second homer of the game to settle the issue.

One of the pleasing incidents of the day from a Boston standpoint was the relief efforts turned in by Art Javery, a rookie from the Bay State. He fanned three Dodgers in the eighth and coasted through the ninth with only a Vosmik single scored against him.

Lefty Joe Sullivan will probably start for the Bees today with Bill Posedel and Bill Swift seeing relief action. Manager Leo Durocher is expected to throw either Whit Wyatt or Luke Hamlin against the Bees as his gang seeks its fourth straight victory.

KIDS SNAP WILLIAMS' SLUMP

the Kid smacked balls into left, center and right field. Many of them carried into the center field bleachers and about the same number landed in the right field stands. A few connected with the left field barrier. Teddy the Kid wore out the kid pitcher, Woodie Rich took over and finally Teddy the Kid quit and allowed the other members of the Red Sox to take their turns at the plate.

Then, with two out in the first inning, Teddy the Kid caught hold of one of Dutch Leonard's fast balls and parked it in the center field bleachers. So, the hour and a half that Teddy spent with the three kids paid dividends, for the swat off Leonard was Teddy the Kid's first home run of the 1940 campaign.

RESTING DIMAGGIO

If the mercury in the thermometers is about 10 degrees north of where it reached yesterday, Manager Joe Cronin will assign Lefty Grove to pitch against the Washington Nats this afternon. Manager Stanley "Bucky" Harris announces that Joe Haynes will be his starting pitcher.

Due to the fact that Lou Finney connected with a home run drive into the bull pen and hit another in the eighth, which had all of the earmarks of a circuit clout, Manager Joe Cronin will give Dominic DiMaggio a few more days off. Dom's ankle is O. K., but he has a sore thumb and therefore is entitled to an extention of his leave of absence.

Mickie Harris, who received the nod over Lefty Grove because of the cold weather, won his spurs as a starting pitcher yesterday by beating the Nats, 7 to 2, and holding Bucky Harris' (no relation) charges to seven hits.

NOT EVEN ON ROSTER

Mickie's name isn't even on the Red Sox roster. He qualified for a regular berth with the Sox in the first game against the Bees at Sarasota. After the Stengelees had nicked Woodie Rich for five hits and six runs in three innings, Manager Joe Cronin decided that the time was ripe for his chesty New Yorker (Mickie Harris) to get his ears pinned back. Mickie hurled six scoreless innings against the Bees, allowed only six hits and pitched himself out of three tough spots. He issued only one walk and struck out six, four of them in the first two rounds he was on the hilltop.

Mickie Harris, who was run out of the Polo Grounds by Bill Terry a few years ago, when he asked for a try out with the Giants, held the Nats to two hits for six innings. Gerry Walker started the second round with a single and moved up a peg when Cecil Travis dropped a safe blow in left center. Then, it was that Mickie Harris showed that he has what it takes. He was really in a tight, for there were two men on, none out and he was trying to protect the one run lead contributed by Ted Williams, who had homered in the first inning. Mickie went to work on the Nats. He struck out Jimmy Bloodworth and then forced Jimmy Pofahl to pop to Teddy Wilhams and Rick Ferrell to ground out to Jim Tabor.

After six rounds, Mickie Harris began to tire and during the last three frames the Nats nicked him for five hits and two runs but he continued to pour them in and came up with his first major league victory.

Although Teddy Williams, Lou Finney and Jimmy Foxx contributed home run drives, Gene Desautels was the offensive star, with three consecutive singles.

Yanks Bow to Chubby for 2d Time

NEW YORK, April 24 (INS)—Chubby Dean let the New York Yankees down with four hits as the Philadelphia Athletics whipped the World Champions, 3-0.

The Athletics also got four safeties, but needed none of them in scoring their tallies. A walk, an error, a sacrifice and a deep fly registered one run for Philadelphia in the sixth inning. Five walks, forcing home two tallies, gave the A's the rest of their margin in the ninth frame.

Bump Hadley, starting Yankee pitcher, issued seven passes, three of them in the ninth. Marius Russo, who replaced him, yielded two walks and was relieved by Spurgeon Chandler.

It was the first shutout of the Yankees this season and the second time in eight days that Dean beat them.

Ohio River Stops Reds Where Cardinals Failed

CINCINNATI, April 24 (INS)—The stubborn Ohio river, which just barely missed halting the game Monday between the Cincinnati Reds and the St. Louis Cardinals, returned inexorably to the fray Tuesday and won.

With a foot and a half of muddy water from the rampaging river eddying over Crosley Field, home grounds of the National League champs, officials postponed yesterday's game and today's, too, conceding they could not be played, at least in the regulation manner.

Gumbert Nips Higbe As Giants Win, 1-0

PHILADELPHIA, April 24 (INS)—Harry Gumbert won a pitching duel from Kirby Higbe, stopping the Phillies with four hits as the New York Giants triumphed, 1-0.

Higbe's wildness, which resulted in eight walks, brought about his downfall in the seventh when he passed Mel Ott to force in Gumbert. Whitehead had walked to open the inning and when Gus Suhr threw wild on Gumbert's bunt both runners were safe. Ruckser sacrificed and Jurges was purposely walked. After Demaree forced Whitehead at home, Ott received the decisive walk.

The Giants got five safeties, four off Higbe before he was lifted for a pinch hitter.

Gumbert squelched a threat in the sixth when, after Martin tripled with one out in the sixth and Chuck Klein walked, he got Arnovich to hit into a double play.

Pirates Tumble Cubs For Third Straight

PITTSBURGH, April 24 (AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates came from behind in a ninth-inning rally to score two runs and beat Chicago 3 to 2 for their third consecutive victory.

With the bases loaded in the ninth Pinch Hitter Paul Waner rapped out a clean single, scoring Arky Vaughan and Deb Garmes. The play at the plate on Garmes was close and the Cubs protested vigorously but to no avail.

Bob Elliott opened the ninth with a single but was forced by Vaughan. Johnny Rizzo and Maurice Van Robays singled and Garmes ran for Rizzo. Then Waner supplied the clincher.

Challedon to Race on Coast

LOS ANGELES, April 24 (AP)—W. L. Brann has nominated Challedon, 1939's outstanding colt, for the $50,000 Hollywood Gold Cup July 27 at Hollywood Park.

Challedon ran second to Johnstown in the Kentucky Derby last year but captured the historic Preakness and went on to become the No. 1 three-year-old of the season.

Whether the Maryland sportsman-owner will send Challedon to the West Coast for the summer season remains to be seen, but a renewal of the Challedon-Kayak II feud in the Gold Cup would make the race one of the best turf offerings of the year. Challedon defeated Kayak II in their match race at Pimlico last year.

FINLAND CANCELS '40 OLYMPIC GAMES

HELSINKI, April 24 (AP)—The 1940 Olympic games, a football for the world's war lords for three years, finally were cancelled definitely when Finland decided it would be impossible to hold the international competition at Helsinki this summer.

The decision, expected since Europe was plunged into war last September, was made at a joint session of the organizing committee and the permanent Finnish Olympic committee.

Although the partially completed Olympic Stadia and buildings, erected at a cost of some $8,000,000, were not damaged by bombs in the recent Russian-Finnish conflict, the Finnish officials decided the international crisis made holding of the games impossible. They decided, however, to petition the International Olympic committee for permission to organize the games when European hostilities cease.

LOS ANGELES, April 24 (AP)—William May Garland, U. S. representative on the Olympic games committee, said that he had anticipated the cancellation and added:

"It is best to forget about the Olympics until 1944. They have been awarded to England, and let us only hope and pray that the world will be at peace and they can be held in London by that time."

CHICAGO, April 24 (AP)—Avery Brundage, chairman of the American Olympic Committee, indicated today there was only an outside chance that the Olympic games could be held before 1944, now that Finland definitely has abandoned the 1940 program.

He pointed out that the International Olympic Committee would have to make a special ruling in order to hold the Olympics any time before 1944.

"However, every nation has a friendly feeling for Finland," Brundage said, "And I think most of them would do anything that could be done legitimately to help the Finns run off the Olympics as planned.

"I think public sentiment in general favors giving Finland a chance to go ahead, but of course, nothing could be done in a definite way before the war in Europe closes and no one knows when that will be."

He estimated that government and private interests in Finland had spent close to $10,000,000 in making preparations for the games.

Mr. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

BOB QUINN, president of the Bees and former owner of the Red Sox, has been the most generous person in New England sports with his time. He has appeared as a speaker at hundreds of gatherings. He has traveled thousands of miles to fulfill these engagements, and has always refused to accept compensation for his services.

"I like to talk before groups of people who are interested in athletics, particularly in baseball," Quinn has often said.

During some of his talks down through the years, Quinn has referred to the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

"In most towns where I had ball clubs before coming to Boston," Bob declared, "the local Chamber of Commerce always gave the ball players a dinner and made them feel as if they were wanted. On opening day, the big merchants, bankers, doctors and lawyers would be at the ball park to give the club a fitting sendoff. It made us feel as if we had real support, and we always tried to make good.

"I have been in Boston a long time, and the Chamber of Commerce has yet to do anything for a ball club with which I have been associated. Baseball is big business as well as a fine sport, and is entitled to better consideration."

The Chamber of Commerce will make amends on Saturday night when the Bees will be special guests at a dinner to be held in the main dining room of the Chamber of Commerce building.

Bob Quinn will be there, and he will find that the Chamber of Commerce is with him 100 per cent.

Everybody Invited to Attend Dinner

EVERY BASEBALL fan in New England has been invited to attend the dinner. Charley Coyle says there will be accommodations for 700 to 800 persons. It is hoped that fathers will take their sons to the dinner with them. The boys will get a thrill out of meeting Bob Quinn, Eddie Miller, Tony Cuccinello, "Sibby" Sisti, Buddy Hassett, Casey Stengel and other famous baseball celebrities.

This is a grand opportunity for Bob Quinn's many friends to pay him honor. I particularly refer to those friends of Bob's for whom he kept speaking engagements when at times he was not in the best of health. On Saturday night at the Chamber of Commerce they will be able to show their appreciation of the Bees' president.

Charley Coyle says the price of tickets has been kept down to $1 so that all who wish to do so may take in the party.

I shall warm up for the Bees' dinner by attending the Press Frolics at the Copley-Plaza tonight. The Press Frolics has become one of the highlights of the merry-go-round of dinners and frolics.

Harry Benwell is my authority for the statement that the floor show will be 100 per cent, while Tom Driscoll of the Copley-Plaza, who has never given me a wrong tip, adds that the dinner and other arrangements will be all that could be asked for.

Boxing Fans Like Louis Over Casey

SINCE STEVE CASEY announced he was willing to wager $100,000 he could beat Joe Louis in a mixed bout, I have received hundreds of letters from boxing fans who contend that the "Brown Bomber" would be certain to chill the Irishman.

"The Speed-Ray pictures showed Tiger Warrenton staggering Casey with a right hand punch," wrote one fan. "Louis is a much better hitter than Warrenton, and if he had been given the same opportunity he would have won by a knockout."

Another boxing fan insists it would be unfair to permit the wrestler to get down on the canvas.

"Let the wrestler stand up and the boxer will knock him out," insisted this fan. "Of course if the wrestler is permitted to crawl along the canvas the boxer will never be able to hit him. Eventually the wrestler would get hold of one of the boxer's legs and throw him."

The fact remains, however, that Louis has not accepted Casey's offer for a mixed match. Providing he won the $100,000 side bet and got $150,000 for his end of the purse, Louis would pull down $250,000.

If Louis felt certain in his own mind that he could win from Casey, he would not pass up this kind of money.

How would The Angel fare against Louis? The Angel has great power, but he is not as fast as Casey, and would be easier for the "Brown Bomber" to hit. The Angel will be back at the Arena tonight to meet Bobby Managoff. The latter is one of the most promising of the younger crop of wrestlers, and is of the opinion he can defeat the grotesque looking Frenchman.

Random Shots at Target

TIGER WARRENTON has signed a five-year contract with Bob Gourty and Johnny Buckley . . . Warrenton is a good right-hand puncher, and if he can secure the proper match he has a chance to skyrocket into the big money overnight.

The sale of tickets for the Armstrong-Paul Junior bout in Maine alone has passed the $6000 mark . . . Chick Hayes' Portland office has asked for $2000 more tickets . . . The Boston sale for the title bout is roaring along merrily.

Armstrong Referees in Worcester

WORCESTER, April 24—Irish Johnny McHale, New York, and Billy Campinelli, Worcester, awaited the gong today for their 10-round main event at Mechanics Hall, here this evening.

Rated one of the most promising welterweights in the country, and handled by astute James J. Johnston, McHale was being held a 2 to 1 choice to defeat the home town idol.

Hammering Henry Armstrong, world's welterweight champion, was to appear as referee.

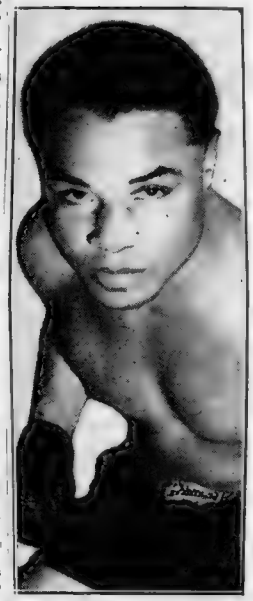
In the semi-final, a six-rounder, Herb Coonan, Rochdale, former New England amateur boxing champion, will appear against a powerful opponent.

Tom Casey, brother of the world's wrestling champion, Steve, will make his second professional bow. In his only other start, Casey hammered out a three-round knockout triumph.

ARMSTRONG ENDS TRAINING FOR TITLE DEFENSE HERE

Hammering Henry Armstrong will today complete his strenuous training for his 15-round bout against Paul Junior in defense of his world's welterweight championship at the Garden on Friday night. Armstrong has convinced those fans who have seen him in action at local gyms that he is in perfect condition and prepared to step at a lively clip every second he is in the ring.

Armstrong will receive a guarantee of $15,000 with a privilege of accepting 45 per cent of the gate for his tussle with Paul Junior.



HENRY ARMSTRONG

PAUL JUNIOR

Hammering Henry is one of the real big money men in the boxing industry.

In nine New York fights, Armstrong attracted an aggregate paid attendance of 157,202. Gate receipts for these fights totalled $650,357.

The average for Hammering Henry's last five starts in Gotham are: Attendance, 20,065; receipts, $97,000. The average for all shows: Attendance, 17,467; receipts, $72,262.

EXPECT RECORD GATE

Armstrong is expected to add to his "gate" record here Friday night. Advance sales indicate that the crowd at the Garden for his clash with Junior will be around the capacity of 18,000. The receipts will be about $30,000 and could be twice that except for the fact that Matchmaker Rip Valenti is producing a "bargain" show, refusing to lift his customary admission.

Paul Junior will receive 15 per cent of the receipts.

Financially, at any rate, it's Boston's largest pugilistic proposition since the Maloney-Carnera clash back somewhere in 1930.

A TREAT TO WATCH

There's a reason for Armstrong's popularity. He's a treat to watch, a ruthless, walk-in fighter who rips loose punches from bell to bell. He shows no mercy and resorts to very rare exhibitions of fancy ring tactics, preferring to charge in and slug it out with the other guy.

Jockey Robart Signs To Ride for W. Collins

Another All-New England racing combination was completed when Pawtucket Eddie Robart signed to ride for W. E. "Wag" Collins during the season of 1940.

Robart, a riding sensation at Gansett, Suffolk and Rockingham last year, has been free-lancing with considerable success. He rode a double Monday and gave every indication of having regained his last year's form.

With his new employer, who trains for the Flying Horse Farm, Jack Whyte and John R. Macomber, Robart will have increased opportunities to ride good horses. This New England-owned outfit is one of the strongest now campaigning at Narragansett.

W. J. McCune has sold to C. Compton the 4-year-old bay colt, Heels, and the 3-year-old chestnut filly Okapalida. The sale was at private terms. H. T. Palmer, Jr., purchased the 3-year-old bay gelding, Sun Antioch, from R. A. Coward at private terms.

C. Yates has taken over the training of Playhouse, Jeanne Jack and High Arch formerly handled by Ed Holton.

Phil Bieber, who trains a string for his brother, Isadore Bieber, received word that either Conde Rico or Confiado would be shipped here for the $5000 added Portsmouth Handicap to be run Saturday.

The racing silks of Ben F. Lister will be seen for the first time this year at Gansett today, when three of the powerful Lister stable will go to the post.

The Providence man is the owner of the largest breeding and racing establishments in this section. His entire string, including Bull Briar, the bulldog colt for which he paid $11,600 at the Saratoga yearling sales, wintered at Whitinsville. They have been rounding into shape under the eye of Trainer Carroll Murphy and are now fit and ready for the racing wars.

Apprentice Danny Johnston, reputed to be one of the best handlers of two-year-olds in the country, will ride some of the Lister youngsters today.

Apprentice E. Suttle, who rode his first winner in the first race at Gansett Monday, is a product of the Sooner State, having been born in Wauriki, Oklahoma. After scoring, Suttle went on to place second with Hunting Home and again with Veiled Lady. He is 18 years old and rides at 107 pounds.

Racing Secretary Bob Shelley has prepared the condition book for the second 10 days of the meeting and the issue will be distributed to horsemen today.

Although the track was heavy after three days of rain, some of the horses nominated for the $5000 Added Portsmouth Handicap worked. Rhodium broke from the Puett gate and went a half-mile in :51 handily. Harp Weaver worked six furlongs in 1:16 handily and Scrooge went five-eighths in 1:08 2-5 handily.

There will be no change in the post time at Narragansett Park with the advent of daylight saving time in New England next Saturday. The daily double windows will continue to close at 2

B. A. A. Elects Brown, Lapham To Direct Club

Walter A. Brown was elected president of the B. A. A. at the club's annual meeting, held at the Hotel Lenox. At the same time Raymond W. Lapham was chosen vice-president and Ralph E. Brown was re-elected to his office of secretary-treasurer.

With the election of Brown and Lapham, the B. A. A. expects to proceed to go places. According to the treasurer's annual report, the famous old club is in a flourishing condition, and plans for the future show a brilliant prospect of a return to the halcyon days of old. The B. A. A. now numbers some 200 tried and true members.

FOLLOW DADS' FOOTSTEPS

Walter Brown and Ray Lapham follow in the footsteps of their justly famous fathers. George V. Brown and Henry G. Lapham, were men who were responsible for much of the success of the old B. A. A. Both were ardent advocates of amateur athletics and both did their utmost to further the cause of all types of athletic endeavor.

Walter and Ray continue along the trail broken by their forebears. Walter has successfully taken over the direction of the Arena and Garden, which under the canny leadership of his father George V. had been firmly established on a paying basis.

B. A. A. REJUVENATED

Ray Lapham, has succeeded his father as president of the Garden-Arena Corporation, and has taken over the many other business activities of his recently deceased father.

Walter Brown has already done much to further the rejuvenation of the B. A. A. He has restored the blue and gold of the B. A. A. to major track sports and under his direction it is expected that the B. A. A. will again return to active competition in other forms of sport.

Ray Lapham has succeeded his able business man is an ardent track, hockey, and boxing fan. He, like his father, is expected to add further glory to the name of the Boston Athletic Association.

Managoff Pits Speed Against Angel's Brawn

Bobby Managoff, youthful Chicago wrestling star, will receive an opportunity to scale the heights tonight when he clashes with The Angel in a finish bout at a Paul Bowser show at the Arena.

If Managoff wins, he will be in line for a bout with Steve Casey for the world's championship.

The Angel has won 50 bouts in a row, and he believes that his 280 pounds of power will enable him to topple the flashy Managoff.

But none of those wrestlers was like Managoff. He's the fastest thing in wrestling tights today and it is his speed he says will carry him to victory, not to forget a few applications of his drop kick.

"I have seen The Angel twice now," said Bobby. "His opponents did all right when they moved around, but once they started staying in one place for any length of time it was all over. Why he puts on that bear hug like a vise. I don't think there's a man who can break it.

"I plan to move so fast he won't see me half the time. That will keep me out of the bear hug."

In the semi-final, Jim Casey, brother of the world's champion, clashes with Gene Bowman.

that these telegrams are positively unsolicited and perfectly bonefeedy. Now here's one from Boston:

"Mr. Snoozing, Dear Sir—In view of our repeated demands and your consistent refusal to pay . . ." er . . . ah . . .Heh! Heh! that one musta got mixed in . . .

WELL FANS, I GUESS WE HAVENT TIME for any more right now. There the argus-eyed, George Moriarty, beloved dean of the American League umpires, gesticulating to Frank Crossetti, doughty leadoff man for the Yanks and beloved shortstop. The game is on. Wotta a supreme, ultra-stupendous moment! Watta a day! The gold dome of the Statehouse over the Charles. Remember how Washington crossed that river, fans, just before the battle of Bunker Hill and how later the Boston massacre was held there . . .

Justa moment! Something happened. Crosetti seems to be on second base. Stand by, folks, and remain calm. I gotta find out how Crosetti reached second. O Yes! he bludgeoned a terrific, space-devouring Texas Leaguer against the center field fence, a beautiful spoon shot. But the play was close and Frankie had to make a flying tackle to reach the bag. That was dynamic, spine-tingling action. I didn't see it, but it was stupendous.

And now Wilson, in a pitch of fury, is lifting his arm. He lowers it. He raised it. The referee waves him to a neutral corner. It looks like a knockout. No, he falls into a clinch.

O, pardon me, I got a sheet of Friday night's Armstrong-Paul fight mixed up in my scripts. There it is! A fast ball down the middle, DiMaggio hits it. It's going out, out, out. What distance! What height! . . . AAaaand it falls into Cramer's hands just back of second base.

I only seem to have one putout for that inning folks. I mislaid the other two somewhere. But I'm virtually sure, yes I'll guarantee that no Yankee runs came in. You can check in the morning papers. Now here we are in the last of the fourth with the Red Sox leading 1 to 0 and Mickey Cochrane coming to bat for the Red Sox, with his loving cup ears waving in the breeze. Mickey, as you know, is the twin brother of Freddy Corcoran, the P. G. A. manager. Now Mickey hits the first pitch but he gets five yards for a high stick—pardon me, folks, that was Gene Desautels after all. But it certainly looked like Mickey Cochrane from this altitude. Heh! Heh!

But wait! Wait! You'll scream! Here I am looking through my date book and I find that the Yankees don't play here till tomorrow. This must be the Red Sox-Senators. Well, is it my fault if the Boston weather gets me all fogged up?

They'll Do It Every Time -:- Hatlo

BEFORE SHE GOT MARRIED JITTERINA HARDLY EVER ATE A SUNDAY MEAL AT THE OLD HOMESTEAD—
GOODBYE, MOM! SO LONG, POP. I WON'T BE HOME FOR DINNER TONIGHT.
IS SHE GOING OUT AGAIN? SEEMS LIKE WE COULD HAVE OUR OWN DAUGHTER AT HOME AT LEAST ONE WEEK-END.
I'VE TRIED TO GET HER TO BRING HER BOY FRIENDS HERE FOR DINNER, BUT IT'S NO USE.
BUT SINCE SHE FINALLY GOT HITCHED TO THAT YOUNG BANK CLERK—JUST TRY TO KEEP 'EM AWAY!
COULDN'T YOU EAT A COUPLE OF CHOPS MORE, ARSON? THERE'S PLENTY IN THE ICE-BOX ISN'T THERE, MOM?
